Don't Neglect Colds

5-Day Week in Politics

No One Born Too Soon

The Adaptable British

— By Arthur Brisbane —

DR. L. STIEGLITZ, of New York, a brilliant physician and scientist, rebuked an elderly patient for neglecting a cold. The rebuke should be useful to all men past 50.

"Nothing could be more dangerous," said Dr. Stieglitz. "When you neglect a cold at 50, or older, you deliberately endanger your life. A cold in itself may be easily cured, with two or three days in bed. Neglected, it runs into pneumonia.

"Mr. Whitney, who died recently, aged 58, had a cold and went about for three days neglecting it, attending to business, and finally went to bed. Pneumonia developed and he died in 24 hours. He hadn't a chance. If he had gone to bed at the first signs of a cold, he would probably be alive and well now."

Men around 60 are dull beings, usually, but some of them do useful work, and are important to their families. They should heed Dr. Stieglitz's warning.

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, enthusiastically welcomed in New England, his stronghold in the 1928 election, attacks President Hoover for neglecting the employment problem. That is politics, and temporary.

The former governor urgently demands a five-day week and is loudly cheered. That is new and important, coming from one that may well be regarded as a presidential candidate for 1932.

Bernard Shaw, in his new "talkie," tells the world he was born 50 years too soon. But, if he could return in 50 years, and learn what has happened to the sale of his books, he might be surprised.

No one is born too soon. One in thousands of millions is born to outlast his age, and other ages, Shakespeare, Euripides, Dante, Homer, Michelangelo. But even they will pass, and become as obsolete as the Cro Magnon artists.

Shaw shows his 75 years in talking about himself too much, his beard, his forehead, his cleverness. Movietone managers should speak to him.

On Monday the King looked over his speech, to be read in the House of Lords, and approved it. He saw it then, for the first time, when Ramsay MacDonald, who wrote it, handed it to him. You know that the British are an adaptable people when you see their King approving a speech of imperial policies written for him by a Labor Unionist.

Can you imagine one of our money kings approving a speech of corporation policies written in his name by the head of a labor union?

Mussolini, about to celebrate the eighth anniversary of his rise to absolute power in Italy, accuses the European nations of deliberately planning another war, and keeping one group of nations disarmed with that plan in view.

Most important, Mussolini for the first time officially sides with Germany, Hungary and other nations that demand revision of the Versailles treaties.

Our government at present is congratulating itself on sinking 30,000 tons of United States submarines at the suggestion of England, which owns most of the commercial ships afloat and naturally doesn't like submarines.

We may wish before long that we had kept those undersea boats. It wouldn't have cost much, if anything, to keep them, and we may soon be rebuilding them.

When you catch a whale you often find some parasite attached to it. Savage sharks have smaller, more savage beasts fastened to their bodies. American business, in lines constantly widening, seems threatened with racketeer parasites, more deadly than any found in the ocean.

The little miniature golf business man might have hoped to escape the racketeers' attention. Joseph Feurman, now dead, learned the contrary.

Detectives say he refused to pay blackmail demanded by miniature golf course racketeers. They took him for a ride in his own automobile, shot him dead and threw him out. They did not bother to take his "two large diamonds and plentiful supply of money." His corpse was intended as a warning to others.

The British government wants to diminish or eliminate the performances, perfunctory flummery now, at the tomb of the unknown soldier, and invites all other nations to do the same. Britain thinks the ceremonies keep alive the war spirit and inflict hardship on visiting statesmen now expected to buy

Electrify Roads, Aid Jobless, Urges Allen

Gov Allen and his new emergency committee got down to the brass tacks of relieving unemployment in Massachusetts at their first meeting held in the State House today.

Stressing the necessity of creating jobs at once, the governor urged the immediate electrification of all railroads serving Boston. A subcommittee was appointed to confer with the Department of Public Utilities regarding the plan.

The governor also promised the expenditure in 1931 of $8,000,000 to abolish grade crossings.

Twenty-five church dignitaries, bankers, business men and civic leaders attended the conference of the committee, of which James J. Phelan is chairman.

OUTLINES PROBLEMS

The problem facing the committee is one of creating jobs, the governor said.

"I think that now is the proper time to discuss the electrification of the railroads, a great improvement that must eventually come," the governor said. "The price of copper is low and labor is plentiful. I urge you to take this suggestion up with the public utilities commission.

"I can see where the State will have financial means as large as last year for its public works. There is $25,000,000 to be available for abolishing grade crossings, and I see no reason why a third of it should not be spent this coming year."

On motion made by Mayor Curley at suggestion of the governor, it was voted that the state committee extend, an invitation to the mayors and selectmen of every city and town in the state to meet in Gardner Auditorium at the State House in the immediate fu

At the request of the administration, Mayor Curley elaborated the tremendous project in a comprehensive letter which he sent today to President Hoover, Secretary of Wa, Hurley, whose army engineers would supervise such a project, and to other government officials at Washington.

His letter is a document believed to contain the most constructive suggestion yet made in this country to overcome the business depression.

TON SHOVEL PLUNGES IN PIT; 2 MORE MAY DIE

80-Foot Steel Hoist Overturns Unloading Sand at Everett Plant

Two workmen were killed and two others injured when a huge steel crane overturned in the yards of the New England Fuel & Transportation Co., Beacham st., Everett, this afternoon.

Police firemen and ambulances were rushed to the scene.

Dr. Arnold Donald Cassidy was at Whidden Memorial Hospital in Everett. He was one of the victims in an excavation into which the huge steel shovel of the crane, somehow, suddenly plunged.

The other victim whose name was Arthur Fitzpatrick was also pinned under the crane, over which fire [illegible] with acetylene torches.

FEAR MORE VICTIMS.

The Boston & Maine railroad sent its largest wrecking crane to the scene on a spur track to lift the overturned crane.

Of the five workmen in the pit where the shovel fell, one was killed outright and another injured, Cosmo Juliano, 49, of Parlin st., Everett, was taken to Whidden Memorial Hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list.

Augustus Larabee, 44, of Michigan ave., East Lynn, engineer of the crane, was rushed to Massachusetts General Hospital, reported in a dying condition from burns from live steam.

He was in the cab of the crane when it tipped over and is believed to have been the man whose hand pulled a warning whistle which caused workmen to leap for safety and undoubtedly saved many lives.

WAS UNLOADING SAND.

The crane, an 80-foot steel hoist on a flat car, steam operated, was on a spur track unloading sand when the accident occured.

From the sand-loaded freight car, the huge shovel swung outward on its steel cable and before its momentum could be checked it had toppled the crane off its base.

It fell towards a huge pile of coke, and the shovel swinging sixty feet beyond its tip on the steel cable dropped into the excavation from which the five workmen were scrambling for their lives.

One, struck by its edge, was cut nearly in two.

Fredericks is believed to be the fireman who leaned at Larabee's whistle warning. He was caught under the trucks in such a position that he could not be released without lifting the crane or cutting it.

A squadron of police was thrown about the fuel company yards and with private police prevented the approach of a huge crowd that gathered outside.

CHEERS AND SONGS MARK HAPPY WARRIOR'S GREAT RALLY

AL PLEASES CROWD WITH HOT SHOTS

"Honey" Fitz in Fine Voice as He Responds to Pleas for "Sweet Adeline"

By BERT FORD

Al Smith, his wife and daughter and his brown derby left Boston last night after the great Democratic rally at the Arena and the cockles of the "Happy Warrior's" heart throbbed with gratitude for the flattering ovation tendered him.

The 10,000 men and women that packed the oval auditorium to overflowing demonstrated three things —that they demanded action on prohibition and unemployment and that they held a enduring affection for "the greatest American commoner of our time," as United States Senator David I. Walsh referred to him.

DELIGHTS AUDIENCE

It tickled that vast audience to hear their idol allude to prohibition as "the noble experiment" and to ask what had become of the "chickens in the pot and the automobiles and the silk socks" that the Republican administration had promised.

How they applauded when he lashed the G. O. P., and his assertion that Republican failure to act in such public emergencies as unemployment proved "lack of leadership" brought down the house.

There was prolonged applause when Mr. Smith called for a united Democracy to elect Joseph B. Ely for Governor, Marcus A. Coolidge to the Senate, and the other candidates on the Democratic ticket.

He said that at Madison square Garden in 1924 and at Houston in 1928, nobody, not even from his own state, had been more loyal to him than Mr. Ely. He reminded the Massachusetts Democrats of the handsome vote they gave to Senator Walsh in 1928 and said nothing had happened in the past two years to warrant sending anybody but a Democratic candidate, in the person of Marcus A. Coolidge, to the United States Senate to junior member to assist Mr. Walsh.

THANKS BAY STATE

He said that as he passed through the throngs that welcomed him in the streets of Boston yesterday he had fond memories of his welcome in 1928. He said yesterday's reception had wiped out the sting of many sleepless nights following his defeat.

"A cat in the old 69th armory in New York and watched the storm clouds gathering," he said "and as I saw those dark figures pouring in, the two bright spots were the returns from Rhode Island and Massachusetts.

"It was with a heart full of gratitude and a spirit of devotion and affection that I came to your state and Rhode Island to speak in behalf of the candidates on the state ticket and to help bring about the election of a Democratic Congress."

Prolonged cheers followed.

Mr. Smith faced a sea of faces. Every seat was taken and hundreds stood wherever space afforded. Women turned out as numerous as the men. A blue haze of smoke gave color to the scene. A band, perched in a loft above the platform played "Sidewalks of New York" and other popular melodies. On the platform with distinguished party leaders and all the candidates on the state ticket.

Senator Walsh, Mayor Curley and former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald were given ovations as were Candidates Ely and Coolidge when they were escorted down the center aisle. William P. Nickerson of Norwood, Gov. Allen's home town, was cheer leader.

Mrs. Smith and her daughter, Mrs. Warner, both in dark attire, sat on the left of the microphone while Al was speaking. When he was introduced at 10 o'clock by Senator Walsh, who was chairman, the cheering lasted seven minutes.

"HONEY" FITZ SINGS

"Honey" Fitz was another idol of the evening. He had to sing "Sweet Adeline" before the crowd would be satisfied and he never rendered it in finer voice, although he said he was doing it against the doctor's orders.

Flags and bunting decorated the Arena, with a lavish display of posters of the various candidates. The hall was nearly filled an hour before Chairman Frank J. Donahue of the Democratic State committee called the meeting to order.

Mr. Donahue said the Republicans couldn't hope to counteract the magnificent welcome accorded Mr. Smith with the rally to be held in Tremont Temple Thursday night, at which former President Coolidge is to be a star speaker.

He said the visit of Al Smith meant a sweeping Democratic victory. He charged that certain renegades were going about with "Allen money," but declared there was not "enough money in Massachusetts to buy the election away from us."

Crowds lined the streets in the vicinity of the Arena to see Al Smith arrive and depart. Many waited for hours for the doors to open.

DENNETT VICE-CHAIRMAN.

Carl P. Dennett, vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce, was appointed vice-chairman of the emergency committee. Headquarters will be opened at the State House at once, and expenses will be borne by the Governor's contingent fund until the Legislature meets again.

The following were chosen as members of an executive committee to which was referred the suggestion that the electrification of railroads be considered: Philip B. Allen, Frank P. Fox, Carl P. Dennett, J. D. Hickey, Frederick M. Jones, James T. Moriarty, J. Foster Smith, John P. Tinsley, K. W. Bowdoin and James J. Phelan.

Chairman Phelan urged the start of Christmas shopping now to relieve the present situation.

A telegram offering his co-operation and good wishes was received from Col. Arthur Woods, President Hoover's appointee to relieve unemployment, by the Governor and Chairman Phelan.

Governor Allen laid several other matters before the committee.

His first suggestion was that local committees be formed by the state committee in every city and town of the Commonwealth with the mayors and chairmen of selectmen directing the local efforts.

He then made four suggestions of lines along which the local committees should work in co-operation with the state committee as follows:

One, "I suggest that you have the committees make a survey of their local conditions, such as:

"Number of industries working full time, partial time and closed down.

"Number of employes in each instance affected.

"Whether or not some of these industries could afford by straining a bit to do more than at present to relieve the unemployment situation.

"What the immediate prospects are for resumption of normal business operation and activity.

"That aid, if any, can be rendered to encourage industrial activity.

"New and Extraordinary projects which may soon be undertaken and which will provide a large amount of employment.

Two, "Searching into the condition of each person unemployed, number of dependants and what their present financial condition may be.

Three, "What necessary city, town or village municipal construction now held in abeyance could very well be undertaken in the present emergency, also at least in part private construction that is now being held back for lack of confidence or a little courage; and programs of public works contemplated by each county, city and town for the next six months.

Four, "Urge charitable institutions and organizations to make a census in their local communities to ascertain how many persons if any there may be in such distress as to need some financial assistance and develop a plan by which adequate and prompt assistance may be given.

COAST GUARD HEAD RELATES FIRING ORDER

Comdr. Coffin Testifies at Court Martial Gunfire Used to Disable Craft

Gloucester, Oct. 29—Coastguards on patrol from Base 7 are instructed that they "understand" a boat displaying lights to be "above suspicion," Comdr. Eugene Coffin, of the base, testified today at courtmartial of Chief Machinist's Mate Hugh D. Olmstead.

Olmstead is on trial, charged with "culpable inefficiency and failing to use proper means to identify a boat before firing upon it."

He was in charge of a patrol boat last August 5 from which machine gun shots were fired that killed Louis E. Pratt, coastguard attached to the Plum Island station, who was out in a surf boat.

RELATES FIRING ORDERS

Commander Coffin, in his testimony today, described equipment in Olmstead's patrol boat and declared that Olmstead was under orders to set off flares and fire pistol shots into the air before using his machine gun on any craft that refused to halt.

Even then, he said, the machine gun fire was to be directed at the stern of the suspicious craft, that her steering gear might be disabled.

The Gloucester commander admitted that coastguards on patrol "understood" that any boat displaying lights out on the water was "above suspicion" and would be allowed to pass without question.

ADMIRAL LAUDS BOSTON MAN

Washington, Oct. 29—Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, today commended two radio men who assembled a high frequency transmitter at Santo Domingo during the September hurricane to communicate with the outside world.

The set was built by Chief Radioman Walter J. Lynch of 7 Rozella st., Dorchester, Mass., and Chief Radioman C. B. Heiberger of Norfolk, Va.

WOMEN TO AID JOBLESS DRIVE

Washington, Oct. 29 (INS)—The women of the country will be mobilized in the employment drive of President Hoover's emergency committee, it was announced today.

Lillian M. Gilbreth, industrial engineer of Montclear, N. J., has been appointed to conduct the feminine side of the campaign.

The women will be asked to make individual surveys of the situation in their homes with a view of having done as much work as possible within the limit of their budget to stimulate employment. What repairing there is to be done, Dr. Gilbreth will urge that it be done now instead of deferring it to a later date.

The radio and motion picture industries will likewise be enlisted in the employment campaign, Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the emergency committee, said today. Both Columbia and National broadcasting chains have offered their facilities. There will be a series of radio addresses which will tell of actual accomplishments so that one community may profit from the experience of another.

WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH IN ALLSTON FIRE

Aged Lodger Trapped in Her Room; Five Escape as Flames Spread

Mrs. Mary Ericson, 65, occupant of a third-floor room in a lodging house at 459 Cambridge st., Allston, lost her life by burns and suffocation this afternoon during a fire that swept the three-story wooden building.

The fire drove out five other persons, including Mr. and Mrs. Adolph J. Coyle, the lodging house proprietors.

Mrs. Coyle said she was in the cellar when she felt a sudden puff of heat. The cellar rapidly filled with smoke, she declared and flames appeared.

Mrs. Coyle hurried upstairs, shouting the alarm. Her husband ran to the basement to extinguish the blaze, but was driven back, his hair and eyebrows being singed.

District Chief Thomas Andreoli found the body of Mrs. Ericson on the floor. Patrolman McManus, Wickes and Somerville of the Brighton station, and firemen rushed her to St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Man Burned as Fire Sweeps Home, Dies

Sterling, Oct. 29—Galen Wilder, 28, was rescued by a milkman from his burning home at Pratts Junction early today—only to die in the milk truck as the driver tried frantically to locate a doctor. The cottage type home from which Wilder was carried by Arthur LeFebre, was destroyed. It was valued at about $2000.

LeFebre was taking a load of milk from Sterling to Leominster, when he saw flames shooting through the roof of the house. Leaping from his truck, LeFebre broke a window in the house, crawled in, snatched the unconscious Wilder from the flames and placed him in the truck.

WOMAN SCORES FRANCE'S ACT

The government of France was again censured today for the exclusion of William Randolph Hearst after his expose of the Anglo-French naval pact, with the arrival in Boston of Agnes McPhail, M. P., only woman member of the Canadian parliament.

"Personally, I am all for the British idea," she said. "Let Mr. Hearst go where he likes and say what he likes. We are all free individuals, able to disagree."

By that, she said, she advocated freedom of the press without the publication of a fact being condemned because of its truth.

She will lecture tomorrow night at the Engineers' Club, with the Zonta Club her audience.

Discussing women in politics, she said more women should enter the legislative field, but they should be "real statesmen and not merely politicians."

She predicted a woman premier for England eventually, but added that it would not come to pass for some time.

Unemployment she described as the most serious situation facing the world today.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the rest are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

N. Y. Mayor Ordered to Appear at "Red" Hearing

New York, Oct. 29—Mayor James J. Walker and Joseph V. McKee, president of the Board of Aldermen, were served with subpoenas yesterday to appear as witness in the Tombs court hearing tomorrow of six communists arrested during a recent Red demonstration at City Hall.

The communists were arrested after Mayor Walker was heckled during a Board of Estimate meeting. Some were beaten by the police during the demonstration in the corridors of the City Hall. The Board of Estimate members will also appear at the hearing.

Famous Air Ace Named in Divorce Suit

New York, Oct. 29—Capt. O. C. LeBoutillier, who was to have piloted Mabel Boll, Queen of Diamonds, on her proposed transatlantic flight last year, was named yesterday in a divorce suit by Jay Weaver filed against his wife, Mrs. Ruth Weaver of New York.

Mabel Boll

Mabel cried bitterly on the shoulder of "Boots" Boutillier, her World War ace, when she couldn't fly the Atlantic to equal Amelia Earhart's record "Bocail" first with Capt. A. Roy Brown on the day he shot down Baron Richthofen, famous German air leader.

Tests to Determine Speed of Light

Chicago, Oct. 29—A final test on the speed of light will be made by Dr. A. A. Michelson within a brief time, according to Prof. Henry G. Gale, professor of physics at the University of Chicago who has just returned from a visit with Michelson at Pasadena, Cal.

Preliminary tests leading up to the final and definitive calculation will begin within two weeks, Dr. Gale said. With his new apparatus, Dr. Michelson hopes further to reduce the possibility of error in his measurements. After his classic experiment in 1926 in which Dr. Michelson figured the speed of light as 186,284 miles a second, the possible error was estimated at one part in several thousand, plus or minus.

Curley's Billion-Dollar Plan Up to Hoover

ter that the deepening of the river, opening it to ocean-borne traffic, would stimulate development of the American merchant marine.

It would develop an inland industrial empire of more potential value than the Louisiana purchase, he says, because no great manufacturer could afford to be without at least one plant on this new waterway of commerce.

By building storage basins, the people of the Mississippi valley, he says, would be saved from the flood catastrophes such as devastated their country only three years ago, and they would be guaranteed a steady supply of water for their crops in the periods of drouth.

The farmers of the West, now languishing in a period of sorry depression that has lasted 10 years, with wheat down to 50 cents a bushel, would derive the immense advantage of lower transportation rates for their products of the soil, Mayor Curley declared. Without their prosperity, the country as a whole can not be prosperous to its fullest degree.

A deeper and wider Mississippi river, he declares, would facilitate the industrial and agricultural commerce of inland America, to the trade marts of the Orient and Latin-America. He reminds President Hoover that because of the tariff and because of anti-American hostility in Europe the future foreign trade of the United States must be largely with the countries of Latin-America in the south.

WOULD PAY FOR SELF

European competition is again penetrating those markets, he says attempting to regain its pre-war advantage. The United States has the advantage of contiguity, Mayor Curley says, but it can not be utilized fully to the best interests of the continent as a whole until the American industrialist and exporter are given the benefit of cheap water transportation rates.

President Hoover's largest reputation is as an engineer, Mayor Curley reminds him, and he will be expected by the country to visualize the vast merit of this great enterprise.

Mayor Curley also declared that the American people would not countenance the blocking of this magnificent development by the powerful railroad interests which selfishly opposed the Panama Canal, and the electric power interests which for years stood in the path of Boulder Canyon dam. Cheaper water-power energy from the storage basins would be one of by-products of this development and the lowered rates and more efficient electrical service would be of incalculable value to all consumers, from manufacturers to householders.

Mayor Curley predicts that the saving in transportation rates and electric power and the increment of increased property values would alone pay the entire cost of this project within this generation.

He calls President Hoover's attention to the fact that the army engineers have been in charge of the Mississippi many years and he presumes they have evolved plans which would permit the development to be undertaken without delay.

MOUNTED POLICE TO FURNISH THRILLS IN HORSE SHOW TONIGHT

STELLAR LIST OF ENTRIES ON 2D DAY

Another Brilliant Spectacle Promised as Society Folk Gather at Garden

The second day of the second Boston Horse Show held here in nearly a quarter century got under way today at Boston Garden with another brilliant list of entries vieing for honors.

More than 6000 spectators, including an imposing roll of Greater Boston society folk, attended the first night showing last night, at which exhibitors from all parts of the United States and from Canada and overseas participated.

Among the many features of tonight will be the appearance of the crack riders and fine horses of the Boston police department.

Tonight another throng is expected at the Garden—and every night until the closing on Saturday.

Horse lovers came from far and near to attend the afternoon and evening openings and they will present daily during the remaining four days of what is declared to be the most colorful horse show ever held here and perhaps abroad as well.

BRILLIANT GOWNS

The brilliant wraps and gowns of the women and the evening dress uniforms of army officers from four nations made a background of varying hues for the action taking place down on the floor of the spacious amphitheater.

Except for the horses, the first night showgoers had all the appearance of music lovers attending the first night of the opera—a dazzling spectacle.

The international events, in which the army teams of Germany, Irish Free State, Canada and the United States competed, featured the opening day's program.

U. S. TEAM WINS

The United States team led by Capt. W. B. Bradford carried off the major number of prizes in the jumping events.

Mrs. W. P. Roth of San Francisco was a big winner and her entry, Chief of Longview, in the saddle horse class for Stallions, proved to be the best of the day in winning from W. T. Treadway's Rex Lee Bourbon, and G. Berry Beaumont's Beau King.

In the military class for Officers' Chargers, Suzanne, entered by the United States Army team and ridden by Capt. Bradford, nosed out a trio of German horses which flashed second, third and fourth.

A feature event was the trotting another entry from the Adams Charles Francis Adams, driving Mrs. Adams' Prince Buddy, and another entry from the Adams stable finished second.

In the four-and-hand class, a pair of Tally Hos were entered, James Walsh's entry carrying off first and Mrs. Florence F. Dibble's team taking second.

BOSTON GARDEN was the Mecca for Boston society leaders last night, the occasion being the opening of the international horse show which drew patrons from all parts of the United States and Canada, as well as from overseas. In the merry group of exhibitors were Miss Miriam Winslow and William E. Chamberlain of Boston. Mrs. F. H. Tolman was among those fashionably gowned while R. J. Flick and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Almy were also among the many who occupied boxes. (Story on Society Page.) (Staff photos.)

Jobs for 95 More Are Listed at Employment Bureau

(Have you an odd job to be done? Call the Municipal Employment Bureau, Liberty 8697, or mail the attached coupon to 25 Church st., Boston.

The Municipal Employment Bureau opened its doors this morning with the following applications for workers on hand, these having been received late yesterday:

Two paperhangers.

One auto mechanic.

Ten salesmen on commission.

One experienced wool sorter (woman or girl).

One printer.

Thirty laundry solicitors on commission.

Fifty mother's helpers.

With the opening of the offices, Director John J. Shields and his corps of assistants began receiving calls for more workers from persons who, in accordance with the Boston Evening American's suggestion, offered odd jobs to help the needy.

But the opening of the doors found, as well, several hundred on hand applying for work.

Director Shields asked today that a fresh appeal be made to the people in the homes of Greater Boston to get those odd jobs done, the tasks which every household has.

"If the householders and owners respond, conditions will be greatly improved," he said. "They and the big business men can put over this great relief movement. The smaller business men are doing their bit so far."

The repair work, painting, all the things a handy man can do around a house or building—that's what he means. And those tasks which one additional worker in business or industry here and there might be allowed to do.

Trained workers of nearly every conceivable kind are registered at the Municipal Employment Bureau. Why not help yourself and them at negligible cost by supplying work or odd jobs?

Figures given out this morning by Director Shields show that approximately 1200 were on hand yesterday, and that 85 men and 20 women got work.

30 LAUNDRY JOBS

Seven men went to work as handymen, three as 'janitors, 12 as "supers" at the Shubert Lyric Theater to take part in the musical comedy, "Light Wines and Beer"; 15 as salesmen, and so on through the long list.

The Cambridge Laundry announced today the hiring of 30 girls and 20 men as solicitors on salary and commission. Walter Emery, manager of the plant at 8 Sodon st., Cambridge, said the company does not need additional workers inside at present, but will engage the girl solicitors as laundresses as soon as they bring in sufficient work to warrant it.

A letter from a Dorchester mother was received at the bureau to support the plea of her husband for work, and it shows the plight of many Boston families in this time of distress.

"We have been readers of the Boston American for a long time," the letter reads, "and I read the other night of the American's efforts to help the needy.

"My husband has had no work for a long while and we have nine children, the eldest only 14, the youngest seven months, and another is expected.

FACE EVICTION, TOO

"It is terribly discouraging. Can't you help us? We are in such need of everything and there seems so little hope.

"We have our notice to move, for do what we can we have been unable to pay the rent. I have no crib or stroller for the baby, but we don't ask charity, only work. Please don't forget the folks with big families like us."

The writer is Mrs. John Jolliemore of 48 Fuller st., Dorchester.

Such are the circumstances of countless Boston families today and only the aid NOW of the people of metropolitan Boston, who can supply those odd jobs if they only will, can help them.

The appended coupon is for your use if you wish, but if you prefer just call Liberty 8697 and Mr. Shields or an assistant will take care of your wants immediately.

Ellsworth Invited to Go With Wilkins

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 29 (AP)—Sir Hubert Wilkins, noted English Arctic explorer, has invited Lincoln Ellsworth, American explorer, to accompany him as co-leader on his proposed submarine expedition to the North Pole. Sir Hubert said last night he planned to leave New York in April for England.

Raiders in Evening Clothes Embarrass Texas Guinan

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—Texas Guinan had another embarrassing moment today when she discovered she had again been entertaining police unawares.

The blow-off came early this morning while about 200 guests were watching the floor show which Miss Guinan directs at the Club Argonaut in West 54th st.

Men in proper evening clothes, who had visited the place frequently enough recently to be classed as "regulars," arrested Bernardi Tann, assistant manager, and Bernard Altman, captain of waiters, charging them with maintaining a nuisance under a state law at 1:1 with furnishing "set ups" for liquor, an offence under the federal prohibition law.

Miss Guinan's last official contact with the police before today was in April, 1929, when they raided the club in time where she was hostess.

LABOR FAVORED BY TOMASELLO

The move to supplant machines with hand labor for relief of unemployment was furthered today at the first public hearing of the City Council unemployment committee when Joseph A. Tomasello, one of the city's larger contractors urged the change.

Question by Chairman John F. Dowd, Tomasello said it would increase the use of labor more than 500 per cent but said the contractors should be protected by higher pay for the contracts.

He said he believed the tax payers would be willing in view of the need for work at this time. His statements followed the substance of an order passed Monday, in which it is proposed to require contractors to use labor in place of some machines.

Questioning brought a tilt between Councillors Francis Kelley and Isadore Ruby. Joseph Maney, Coleman Brothers' representative, told of putting 50 men to work in the last week and Kelley asked:

"Would you be willing to look after Boston men if the mayor had nerve enough to ask you?"

Ruby interrupted saying:

"The Mayor has more nerve than any of the 22 councillors."

Contractors who testified included Fernard J. O'Neil, Matthew Cummings, Martino De Matteo, Matthew F. Gaddis, Charles J. McCarthy and Leo J. Nawn. All said they paid the regular $5 a day and employed Boston labor.

BULGARS RIOT, BORIS GUARDED

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 29 (INS)—While King Boris and his bride Queen Giovanna were on their way to Bulgaria from Italy aboard the royal yacht Czar Ferdinand, Communist riots, protesting the mixed marriage, shook the capital today.

Fearing disturbances at Varna, where the citizens are decidedly against the Catholic marriage, the royal party has changed its plans of landing there. The Czar Ferdinand will stop at Bourgas instead, and the royal couple will entrain for Sofia from there.

"Down With Fascism" placards were posted all about the Italian legation here, which the police removed immediately.

Heavy squadrons of military and police forces were assigned to Government buildings, and will be on hand to escort King Boris and his new queen through the streets to the palace on their arrival here.

$246,000 BANK LOOTER GUILTY

Providence, R. I., Oct. 29 (AP)—E. Linton Jordan of Edgewood today pleaded guilty in United States District Court to charges of conspiracy in connection with the alleged shortage of $246,000 in funds of the National Bank of Commerce. Ten other counts alleging aiding and abetting in making false entries in the books were not pressed.

Peter L. Simonini, former head bookkeeper at the bank, who a week ago pleaded guilty to one indictment growing out of the shortage, today pleaded not guilty to two additional indictments. Both Simonini and Jordan were held under bail for sentence until completion of the trial of Thomas J. Madden, a fourth defendant.

AIRPORT WORK TO BE RUSHED

Park Department engineers will begin soundings immediately at Boston Airport as the result of Mayor Curley's awarding to the Bay State Dredging Co. a contract for filling more than 100 acres of mud flats at the southeast edge of the airport.

When this additional area is filled in, the airport will have a 2800-foot runway East-and-West, which will extend in back of the Colonial hangar, and will be rated an A-1-A flying field.

The flats are under water at half and high tides but will be filled in to level as soon as insoundings are completed.

Meanwhile today, all flying activities at the airport came to a halt at noon when rain and poor visibility made flights too hazardous.

HUNTERS SHOT VERMONT BOY 'FOR A BEAR'

Both Fired When They Saw "Pair of Eyes" in Dark; One Bullet Killed Lad

Roxbury, Vt., Oct. 29—Arrested today in connection with the fatal shooting of Charles Sears, 13, in the woods near the boy's home here, Frank Parkhurst and Glen Erskine admitted firing at him, calling it a hunter's mistake, according to the police.

"We saw a pair of eyes and thought it was a bear," the authorities quoted them as saying.

"Both of us fired. Then we heard a cry and, frightened, we ran away. We don't know which one of us hit him."

An autopsy to be performed late today at Randolph by State Pathologist Dr. C. S. Whitney, and Dr. F. S. Kent of the State laboratories at Burlington may decide whether Parkhurt or Erskine hit the boy.

The men were hunting with rifles and it was just after darkness fell last night that the shooting occurred.

A posse, believing the boy had been deliberately shot, was combing the woods for the slayer, who was supposed to be in hiding, when the arrest of the two hunters at their homes solved the mystery.

Parkhurst lives about a mile and a half from the Sears home, and Erskine lives next to him. They are being held by Sheriff Henry C. Lawson at Montpelier without definite charges against them as yet.

Mr. Hearst will speak in the studios of Station KFI, the Earl C. Anthony station in Los Angeles. From there his talk will be sent through the National Broadcasting Co.'s transcontinental network.

The Collier's hour, heard every Sunday evening, is on the air from 8:15 to 9:15 p. m. Eastern Standard time, 7:15 to 8:15 Central Standard time, 6:15 to 7:15 Mountain time and 5:15 to 6:15 Pacific Standard time.

LOST PORTLAND MAN RETURNS TO HOTEL

Search for John Lodge Chadbourne, who vanished from a Boston night club Friday, leaving his wife sitting at a table, ended today when the wealthy Maine engineer strolled into the Statler Hotel in daze.

The mystery of his strange disappearance has deepened, however, because Chadbourne was unable to give any explanation of his absence and is now at the hotel under care of physicians.

MYSTERY TO POLICE

Police were notified of Chadbourne's return by Night Manager Roberts of the hotel. Lieut. Edward Fallon, of the Back Bay station, sent officers to the scene but they were unable to get any account of Chadbourne's doings since Friday.

Search for the wealthy engineer was being conducted by police throughout New England and New York when Chadbourne returned as mysteriously as he vanished from the Hollywood Inn.

Albert H. Chadbourne, father of the engineer, came to Boston from New York yesterday to direct the search here.

SEARCH IS FUTILE

Although police were notified of Chadbourne's disappearance one hour after it occurred, a search failed to reveal any trace of him.

Chadbourne is a resident of North Berwick, Me., and is a civil engineer. He is the grandson of Prof. Paul C. Chadbourne, one time president of Williams College.

He came to this city to attend the American Legion convention and decided to remain. He invited his wife to join him and the two were dining in a downtown night club last Friday when the engineer excused himself for a moment.

He was traced as far as a neighboring hotel a few blocks away, where he obtained a few matches from a cigar clerk.

KELLEY FIRED IN OIL 'EXPOSE'

Washington, Oct. 29 (AP)—Secretary Wilbur today dismissed from the service Ralph S. Kelley, former Denver field agent, who had charged the department with mishandling Colorado oil shale lands.

In a brief letter addressed to Mr. Kelley, Secretary Wilbur said:

"Referring to my letter of Sept. 29, suspending you from duty, your conduct has been such that your connection with the interior department may be considered terminated by dismissal as of Sept. 29, 1930."

In his letter of Sept. 29, Secretary Wilbur declined to accept Kelley's resignation, which the field agent submitted at the time he made his charges public, but suspended him pending an investigation.

An Event Planned Ever Since Our Last Big One-Price Sale—To Be an Event You'll Remember For Years

We want to surprise you—not disappoint you, and therefore you will find that in almost every case we deliberately UNDERSTATE the regular prices of these items. Our headline says "$25 to $50 Items," yet herein you will see regular $55 and even $65 values. In every case, unbelievable as some of the regular prices quoted seem, we have given you a conservative rather than an exaggerated figure. That's WHY people KNOW Summerfield's is reliable.

PORT OF BOSTON

By CARL MORRISON

East Boston is rising up in wrath over the delay in clearing up the rat menace at Border and Condor sts., where some 20 old wrecks lie.

A petition, with 275 names already secured is in circulation. A goal of about 400 is sought, according to Frank Flaherty who is active in the movement.

It is understood the fire department heartily approves the drive against the breeding places of the rats, as these hulks often develop fires. A mass meeting of citizens is to be called in protest if the proper authorities fail to take action.

RADIO CHART

The Maritime Association is displaying a special "Wireless Chart of the World," which is attracting considerable interest. It is loaned by Wilfred C. White, member of the association committee on navigation and maritime legislation, and also a member of the committee of aids to navigation and marine communication.

CLUB PLANS

The next meeting of the Foreign Commerce Club is expected to set a club record for attendance. The plans are ambitious and the banquet price has been reduced.

The meeting will be held October 28 at the Chamber of Commerce. The first speaker will be George E. Farnum of Boston, who recently resigned as Assistant U. S. Attorney-General. He was the government expert in handling of admiralty and alien property matters during the World War. He will tell the "inside story" on war seizures.

A. E. Peterson of New York, representing the Pan American Airways, Inc., will tell of promotional plans in behalf of the United States foreign air mail service.

TODAY'S WHO'S WHO

The subject of today's "Who's Who" in Boston harbor is Arthur E. Hatch of the firm of Charles E. Fitz & Co., of 50 State st., well known waterfront engineer and industrial real estate executive.

Mr. Hatch has been in the dredging and construction business in the harbor for more than 30 years, and recently has been concentrating in industrial work. He is one of the best known harbor boosters.

This graduate of M. I. T. is a member of the Maritime Association committee on port facilities. He recently issued a novel leaflet in which some pithy information was disclosed about this port.

This leaflet attracted the attention of the city's industrial and publicity bureau, and an additional 25,000 are to be printed. Mr. Hatch advocates the formation of a metropolitan industrial district, something in the order of the present metropolitan water, sewer and park districts.

OUSTED BRAZIL CHIEF SEEKS REFUGE

Mexico City, Oct. 29 (AP)—The newspaper Universal has been advised by a correspondent that Washington Luis, ousted president of Brazil, has taken refuge in the Mexican embassy at Rio de Janeiro.

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 29—Extreme precautions were taken today to safeguard the life of Dr. Getulio Vargas when he arrives here today from Sao Paulo to assume control of the Brazilian government.

Despite the victory of the revolution and the almost phenomenal popularity of Dr. Vargas, it was felt by revolutionary leaders that there were still elements which question his designation as president by the military junta which deposed President Washington Luis.

All that is known here of Vargas' plans is that he ordered a special train to proceed first through the State of Sao Paulo to its capital, and thence to Rio de Janeiro. There were widespread reports here that he would arrive today, prepared to outline future policies of the revolution and new government. He is expected to bring with him a force of gaucho or cowboy rebel cavalry.

Capt. Juarez Tavora, leader of the victorious revolutionary army of the north, arrived late yesterday by airplane from Bahia, and was given a tumultuous greeting by the populace.

The youthful military leader, asking that no military men enter the new government, has refused himself gracefully from a situation in which at least one section of the country would have considered him as having equal rights with Dr. Vargas for the presidency.

TAX ACCOUNTS SHORT $8000

Hubbardston, Oct. 29 (AP)—A shortage of approximately $8000 in the accounts of H. E. Hartford, tax collector, who resigned October 3, has been uncovered by state auditors working on the town books, according to the selectmen. Efforts to reach the auditors today for a statement were fruitless.

Hartford resigned as tax collector and selectman after serving as collector three years. He also was town auditor at the time a previous shortage was revealed in the accounts of the tax collector who preceded him in office.

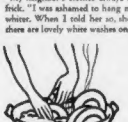
Why I changed to Chipso

Mrs. H. H.—
"My neighbor always had whiter clothes—now mine are lovely too."

"My neighbor's clothes always looked just like snow," writes Mrs. Harry Hilfrick. "I was ashamed to hang mine out beside hers because hers were so much whiter. When I told her so, she suggested that I use Chipso and I did. Now there are lovely white washes on both sides of the fence."



Mrs. T. W. S.—
"Used to be ashamed of my hands."

If you are using a strong soap for dishes, change to Chipso for a week! You'll find that Chipso's rich, velvety suds swish your dishes clean in a hurry and your hands stay nicer. Why sacrifice your hands to strong soap when Chipso is so economical to use? The big box of Chipso will wash your dishes for about a month.

Would you like a shorter washday?

Try Chipso Granules!

Wouldn't you like to find a soap that foams up into rich suds even in lukewarm water? Especially if you discovered that this soap does all the hard work for you—that it soaks dirt free, saves back-breaking rubbing, does away with hot, steamy boiling? And if you learned that this soap was absolutely not a strong soap, but was kind to your hands and your colored clothes, wouldn't you say, "Where can I find it?" Well, there is a soap like this. It's called Chipso Granules and it's at your grocer's now. It's something new! It looks like a soap powder, but isn't. Chipso Granules are rich Chipso suds in steam-dried form. Extra-quick!

Mrs. J. S.—
"Even lukewarm water dissolves Chipso Granules—and how convenient that is!"

No boiling water needed to turn Chipso into suds. Indeed, Chipso Granules dissolve in lukewarm water. And how convenient that is for soaking or for washing colored clothes that need a lukewarm suds anyway.

Mrs. B. F.—
"Decided my nice colored clothes deserved a better soap."

With everything so expensive these days—it's more economical to use a better soap. Too-strong soaps take out more than dirt—they fade colors and eat away the life and strength of your clothes. But Chipso suds are rich, not strong. This fine white soap gives busy, lasting suds that penetrate the clothes and lift the dirt out. Very little rubbing for you. And your colored clothes come out fresh and bright—and stay that way through washing after washing.

Public Betrayed In Mattapan Rapid Transit

Editor Boston American:

I am glad to see somebody taking up the conditions of rapid transit in the Mattapan division of the El. The original intention was for the transit to run through to Mattapan. It is said that "there never was a time when the people haven't been betrayed by their government," and the public utilities, running true to form, permitted the El to stop the trains at Ashmont. This ruling defrauds every passenger of about three minutes' time every trip.

Multiply the number of passengers per day by three and see the enormous loss of time the Public Utilities inflict upon the people who pay their salaries to be protected.

Abraham Lincoln signed the emancipation proclamation and freed about a million slaves. Mr. Coolidge signed the "Boston Elevated steal" which enslaved a million or so citizens of Greater Boston. No slave ship was ever packed as the cars of the "El"; and we were taxed $4,000,000 to put these masters on our backs. Not one of us will ever see one cent of the above principal or interest again. Instead, doors slammed in our faces, buses shooting by and cars taken off so that all hours are "rush hours."

Says Man's Superiority Fast Drawing to End

Editor Boston American:

Man's historical superiority over woman is gradually getting more dents. He was once known as head of the family. Probably in some rare instances he still holds this helm but he's slowly slipping from his throne of authority.

This is constantly being brought out in the probate court in divorce cases. Man is finding his position analogous to certain parasites where the male is a little organism attached to the side of the female. If you know anything about natural history, you will find that the seaworm Bonellia the female, is 96 times larger than the male.

To carry this farther the female butterfly is 10 times larger than the male. The lady spider is so superior to the male that she makes a meal out of the male eventually. I cite these cases to show the male of the human species is gradually becoming what some wives are now calling their husbands, "insects." This is my impression after listening to divorce trials in Boston courts.

"Most Politicians Have Too Much Experience"

Editor Boston American:

They're trying to make us believe that it isn't wise to elect candidates who "lack experience." Well, the trouble with most politicians is that they have too much experience.

The people themselves have had a lot of experience with prohibition, for instance. They've learned that it's no good, no matter from what point of view one looks at it. Any candidate who doesn't see the utter farce and failure of the "noble experiment" doesn't seem to be able to profit by years of experience and ought not to be elected for that very reason. If the nation is going to pray for Massachusetts on election day let them include these blind candidates.

Lashings Defended As Cure for Crime

Editor Boston American:

Congratulations to Miss Martha Glaser on her splendid letter; but the hangings were long ago when the people's imagination was not so keen, when the shame and ignominy were not so great. Today the disgrace of a flogging would be nation-wide, the movies of the jeering crowd being carried from coast to coast.

People are not much impressed with electric chairs and dungeons because they cannot visualize them. There is no contact. But the stripes they could feel. You cannot coddle viciousness even though it be a handsome, cultured and nonchalant hit-and-run driver, who gives a musical horn-toot before his get-a-way.

After my letter on striping certain types of people, I have read that Mr. Wickersham, brilliant former Attorney-General and Lord Castelrosse, famous columnist of London, where they handle crime very well, say to flog the gun gangster to put the fear of God into his hide.

Says Lord Castelrosse, "We have an infallible remedy for that sort of thing. We catch 'em and flog 'em. No use being squeamish with such gentry. What is needed is an effective deterrent. Criminals of a certain type do not fear ordinary penalties. They do fear the cat. One sound flogging sends the average bad man into retirement. Few come back for more. So there you are—flog 'em." (Daily Mirror, N. Y.)

Physical punishment and pain they fear; publicity very little. Flogging of sovereigns would prevent war. They do not feel the pains of war. Castelrosse knows his England, an England quite a little different from the days of "the hangings and lashings on a high hill."

To those already mentioned as eligible for flogging, viz., hit-and-run drivers, dope pedlars (not the users), murderers; I now add all gunmen, office-buying judges, corrupt politicians, bootleggers who sell poison (only that type of bootlegger), smugglers of aliens (especially Chinese, into America), hypocrites who vote dry and drink wet (some Senators and congressmen would get the lash here); gilt stock salesmen who rob the poor, police who frame people, husbands who steal other men's wives, and vice versa, with the accent on the vice; lawyers who defraud clients, auto thieves, the unpatriotic who would favor England against us in war (and, strange to say, there are many of that ilk here in America); the capitalist who unjustly cuts wages for more dividends, the merger genius who combines companies and throws helpless people on the mercy of the world, and others and others.

PATRICK J. LOGUE.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

Your means of finding employment is certainly a wonderful work for the public welfare in these hard times!

I would like to suggest that you run a notice each day in your paper, teaching the many men and women that are having a hard time to make a living not to let themselves worry but to keep smiling and not to lose courage, for better times are coming.

I make this suggestion as I know from my own personal experience that worry can ruin health, and lead to mental and physical breakdown.

You, no doubt, know that in times of depression there is a great increase in mental breakdown brought on from down heartaches and worry and fear. I believe that the public should be warned against worry and allowing themselves to become unhappy.

I know what it is to meet with worry. I myself have a family of seven children and suffered a breakdown from worry whereas if I had known how to meet trouble without worry it never would have happened.

They are educating the public against cancer by preaching on the billboards along the roads, why not mental hygiene, too?

G. O. P. TARIFF AND DRY LAW FIASCO TARGETS OF SMITH'S ATTACK

TEXT OF FIERY ADDRESS AT DEMOCRATIC RALLY

Following is the text, in part, of former Governor Alfred E. Smith's address at the Boston Arena last night:

Senator, and my friends of Boston:

As I rode through the streets of the city today there came over me fond recollections of two years ago, and while it was a hard, heavy, uphill grind, the affection and the esteem and the regard that was conferred upon me in Boston made up for many a sleepless night.

And it was largely a measure of that mark of affection and regard that I find myself in Boston tonight opening one of the two public addresses that I was called upon to make by the national committee in the course of this campaign, I chose Massachusetts and Rhode Island for obvious reasons.

TACKLES SUBJECT

Now, inasmuch as our time on the radio is limited, we will start right up. In the course of the campaign of 1928 the Republican candidate for President said that platform pledges must not be empty gestures. The following is an extract from the Republican platform:

"By unwavering adherence to sound principles through the wisdom of Republican legislation and the capacity of Republican administrations, the foundations have been laid and the greatest Republic and the prosperity of the country firmly established."

One of the policies referred to in that particular plank of the Republican platform was the tariff, and for a little while tonight we will pay our respects to the tariff.

Let us look at the Republican platform on the question of the tariff.

QUOTES HOOVER

"We realize that there are certain industries which cannot now successfully compete with foreign products because of lower wages and a lower cost of living abroad, and we pledge the next Republican Congress to an examination, and where necessary, a revision of these schedules."

That platform plank was afterwards amplified by the statement of the Republican candidate himself at the opening of the special session of Congress, when he said:

"I have called this special session of Congress to redeem two pledges given in the last election, farm relief and limited changes in the tariff."

Well, what happens? When Congress convened there was no; any question about any limited revision. They forgot the platform pledge and they disregarded entirely the words and language of the President's message and the Republican party indulged itself in a full and complete revision of the tariff, something that the American people had no reason to expect and, in fact, had no desire to achieve.

It has been said that the special interests interested in revision of the tariff were in a hurry to collect and limited revision didn't sound so good to them.

Well, this limited revision took nine long months and eight days, and during all that period the business of the country was practically in suspense, living in uncertainty, living in doubt as to what the final outcome of Congress would be with respect to the tariff.

BLOW TO BUSINESS

And listen. There is not any doubt that the uncertainty occasioned by that long period had a great deal to do with the business depression of the country from which has grown the unemployment that we witness today.

I am informed, and by very good authority, that when the original tariff bill was framed in the committee of ways and means in the House of Representatives that the Democratic members of that committee were excluded from the room. Why? They had to see the schedules eventually.

They had to read the first draft of the tariff bill at some time or another. It was not humanly possible to conceal it from them for all time. And why exclude them?

I am again reliably informed that our Republican brethren were unwilling to let the Democratic minority know who had a hand in the framing and the shaping of the schedules in that original draft of the tariff bill. They were not so much afraid of the bill itself as they were of disclosing who stood sponsor for it.

VOICE OF GRUNDY

Listen to this: Mr. Bowers of New York was the keynote speaker of the Democratic national convention at Houston. He spoke over the radio on the 3d day of this month, and he spoke about the tariff bill and the President's action in respect to it, and among other things he said:

"Why did he sign? Because more potent with the administration than the voice of the people was the voice of Joe Grundy, the super-lobbyist, the beneficiary of the tariff, demanding that he sign because he had raised among his people nearly $1,000,000 for the election of Mr. Hoover, and having bought and hauled for the privilege he demanded the delivery of the goods."

That is the story. He demanded the delivery of the goods. And here we find at this late day, with all that has been said about political tinkering with the tariff, with all that has been said about a scientific method of adopting tariff schedules, the open charge made that the man who stored up the heavy campaign schedules for the Republican party demanding the full delivery of the goods, and at once.

And he walked out with them.

What is the old Irish saying? "Money makes the mare go."

Listen to this: In the face of the precedure in the committee on ways and means, and in the House of Representatives and of the Senate, in that year and five months that they wrangled among themselves over that tariff bill, just look what the Republican party in Massachusetts says about it in their platform, among the other things. They say:

"For the step—the step—toward a scientific tariff bill."

Scientific tariff making and delivery of the goods. Now in the campaign we were told that the Republican candidate for President had a great faculty for surrounding himself with men that do, that he was able to bring to his assistance the best minds that the country could produce in the settlement of every great question, that was pressing the American people for solution. What about all the advisers that he had on the other side of that tariff?

INCREASED PRICES

I remember at the time, or it ran into such numbers that I couldn't remember it—I didn't know there were so many professors in the country—that the professors of economics in 179 universities all joined together and asked the President not to sign the tariff bill, and they gave their reasons.

1—It would increase the price to the domestic consumer, with no possibility of benefitting many classes of workers and all professional people whose products enjoyed no tariff favor. Is there any doubt about that?

Has the great rank and file of what we call the white collar class of Americans got any benefit from the tariff? He added to his cost of living, while the professional man has enjoyed no tariff favor.

According to statistics this tariff has cost the consuming public of this country in the stuff manufactured and exported abroad $2,000,000,000. It would provoke other countries to levy retaliatory tariffs against American products. Any doubt about that?

There can only be one surmise, and that is that he must have known all during that year and five months that it was in course of preparation just exactly what was going into it. How can you think otherwise? How can any reasonable person have any other notion about it.

SAYS HOOVER KNEW

I was wondering, and I suppose I have plenty of company in it, during this process of separation what became of the tariff commission.

Why, the dear old tariff commission was just penned up. Nobody gave it a thought. It was lost sight of, and in its place came the paid lobby; in its place came the favor-seeking politician; in its place came the contributors to the campaign, exactly what Claude Bowers referred to as the delivery of the goods, and the tariff commission could not deliver anything, so they were left outside in the cold and the work was done in the committee on ways and means, where delivery could be insured.

We know what happened in the Republican committee on ways and means. Let me give you the Democratic idea of a tariff, of a man's tariff, of a tariff written in the interests of the 120,000,000 people in the United States, as against the tariff for the special and favored few.

First, the Democratic party definitely promised to take the tariff out of politics by the creation of a well-salaried tariff commission, charged by law with the duty of submitting to Congress one schedule at a time.

SPIKED G. O. P. GUNS

Second, the Democratic party realized that the conditions during and following the war had materially raised the standard of American living, which standard was established during the administration of Woodrow Wilson, and the Democratic party pledged itself to such a study of the tariff as would permit the difference between the cheap competitive labor of Europe and the high salaried labor of the United States, but beyond that the Democratic party was opposed to

"New York G. O. P. Piker Alongside Bay Staters"

"I thought that the Grand Old Party in New York was entitled to the large gold medal for double-dealing and ducking and dodging on the prohibition issue, but after I came to the State of Massachusetts I take my hat off to the Republican organization of this State, because the New York State organization is just a piker alongside of this one."—Extract from speech by Ex-Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

lesting the American people pay a single dollar of tribute to a protective industry.

By that operation we succeeded in spiking the guns of our political enemy. Food and Broadcast said:

"That's fine, that's great. Al will go down to Kentucky and tell that to everybody, but what is he going to do if he gets down to Washington with the members of his party?"

The other subject of the special session had to do with farm relief. I propose to deal with that over the Red network of the National Broadcasting Company tomorrow night, so that we will pass it up for tonight.

SEES CONFESSION

Some man lives in Boston by the name of Henry Parkman, Jr. He lives at 294 Washington st. And he sent out a printed letter to the members of the Republican Club of Massachusetts, and after he tells where all the rallies are going to take place and where to get the campaign literature, and who all the speakers are to be, and what time the rally starts, he puts a sentence at the end of the letter in which he says,

"A critical election faces us."

I would say so. I would say so. Critical for the party.

Then he further says:

"A Republican senator and Republican congressman must be sent to Washington to support a great President in a trying period."

It is kind of a strange admission to come from a man who is addressing himself to the members of the Republican club. That looks like a confession in advance. There is the admission of a trying period in the history of the country.

What about that ad that we read of the platform here a couple of years ago? Where are all those chickens which were to be in every pot? Where is that automobile? Where are the silk socks that every working man was to wear? We do not see them.

CHICKEN MISSING

There was to be no doubt about the Republican prosperity, the Republican prosperity which was promised would be continued in the event of the election of a Republican President. What has become of that?

We find the same gentlemen, propably arranging for that ad. I do not know what Mr. Parkman had to do about writing the ad, but if my recollection serves me right it was voted for by the Republican national committee, and in just two short years after we are promised the chicken, the automobile and the socks, we are admitting that a critical period has arrived in the history of our party and that it is necessary to elect Republicans during this trying period in the administration of a Republican President.

Well, so much for the tariff.

Let us for change devote a little time to the "Noble Experiment."

"The most senseless thing that the Republican leaders could attempt to do is to try to get people to believe that prohibition is not an issue in this country. We all know it is. Everybody knows it."

What is the trouble?

When something is palpably certain, when something is apparent to a large mass of people and nothing happens, what is the matter?

I'll tell you what is the matter. We lack leadership.

I thought that the Grand Old Party in New York was entitled to the large gold medal for double-crossing and double-dealing and ducking and dodging on the prohibition issue, but after I came to the State of Massachusetts I take my hat off to the Republican organization in this State, because the New York State organization is just a piker alongside of this one.

Your Republican organization here is entitled to all the medals and all the diplomas for ducking and dodging.

CONTINUE TO STRADDLE

Wait until I show you what they say in their platform:

We favor the continuation of our policy of omitting from the Republican platform all subject matter of referenda.

The referendum that is offered to the people of Massachusetts this fall is whether or not a State statute paralleling the Volstead act is to remain upon the statute book, or whether it is to be expunged.

"Now, that statute found its way on the statute books of Massachusetts by virtue of Republican enactment. And they haven't got nerve enough to sustain it."

And, on the other hand, they haven't got nerve enough to advise that it be abolished. They follow their policy of saying nothing about it.

That is the most complete duck I have ever seen in connection with prohibition. At least in our State they took a position, although they so qualified it that it didn't mean anything, but they took it, nevertheless. But this is the fellow that says, "I decline to answer."

Well, we have had 18 months to make some disposition of this experiment of ours. The favorite way of getting away from a thing is to refer to a committee, appoint a committee, give out a lot of high-sounding names, give out a big statement with it, and say the committee will begin its labors at once.

That sounds very serious. These men are going to sit down and study this question and go all over it and at the end of 18 months they make a report. And listen to the report:

"The President has taken a strong stand for the enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment, and in order to make the federal administration more effective he has had the federal district attorneys offices throughout the country overhauled, and dismissed numerous ineffective officers."

NOTHING ACCOMPLISHED

Where did they come from?

Is it possible that there were so many ineffective officers after the long reign of Calvin Coolidge?

That is kind of confusion.

Let us be easy with them and let them get away with that.

Now one other great and powerful stroke bearing down at the very fundamentals of this question, setting it for all time in the public mind, was the next great thing—transfer of enforcement from the Department of the Treasury to the Department of Justice.

That is to inconvenience the bootleggers. It made no strids at all toward the settlement of the fundamental question, but it put the bootlegger at the distinct disadvantage of being compelled to get acquainted with the new enforcement officers.

The results of the general tightening of law enforcement are apparent in the great increase in the number of persons convicted of felony," we are told.

That is the sum total of all that has happened to the "noble experiment" in 18 months. This problem can never be solved by the Republican party. They never can do it. They are compelled by force of circumstances to duck it and to dodge it.

FOR OUTRIGHT REPEAL

They want to be wet when they are among the wets, and they can be as dry as the Sahara Desert when they are among the drys. Trying to hold both sides. Working both sides of the street at once. That has been their treatment of it since 1920 and they can't change it.

Any hope for relief from it, any leadership, must of necessity come from the Democratic party.

Here is my line of treating it. Here is the plank of the New York Democratic platform. It means to be direct, forceful, to the point, honest straight forward and courageous.

"The Democratic party, as well as the State of New York demands the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act."

Now, we stand right here. There is the demand. Following the repeal, when the power is turned back to the States, "the Democratic party pledges the adoption of such regulatory measures by and in our State as will promote temperance, effectively deal with the saloon, and recognize the principle of home rule in all of its localities."

Now that is a little bit further than we went two years ago. And I want to be fair and I want to be upright and I want to be honest about it, and I freely admit that it is further than we went two years ago.

The eyes of the whole nation are on the State of Massachusetts and on the State of Rhode Island. They did not vote for these policies two years ago, and it is inconceivable to me that Massachusetts can afford to send a Republican Senator to the United States Senate.

AIDE TO WALSH

If we in Massachusetts were not in accord with them two years ago, why, certainly nothing has since happened that should enlist our support.

And if the State of Massachusetts, as I know it does, and as is rest of the nation does, approve the wonderful and splendid service of Senator Walsh he ought to have by his side as the junior Senator from this state a man of his own political party, a man who believes in his own political faith.

Let us therefore hope that Massachusetts, alive to the situation, taking the place that belongs to her as one of the most progressive States of the Union, will elect to the United States Senate the man of our party, Marcus A. Coolidge.

I want to speak also, while I am here, in the double capacity both for the State for the benefit of the Commonwealth, and for strong personal reasons, a word for my friend here in Massachusetts, for the election of the Democratic candidate for Governor, Joseph B. Ely.

At Madison Square in 1924, and at Houston, no representative in this country was more devoted to my cause than was Mr. Ely. He could not have been more steadfast nor more loyal if I had come from his own State. The school in the State of New York could have been more devoted to my cause than he was.

TRIBUTE TO STATE

After the election of 1928, Bill Kenney said:

"Where shall we go for two weeks?" I said, "I don't know; I would like to go some place where it is hot; I would like to perspire; I would like to walk around in my sleeves; I would like to play golf without a sweater on."

So what do you think he did? He called up the weather bureau and he asked the chief of the weather bureau where was the hottest place in the United States, and the weather bureau chief answered back, 'Biloxi, down in Mississippi.

We never had heard of it before; in fact, I had difficulty pronouncing it. So that we started for Biloxi. There was a large piece in the paper the next day that Al Smith and Rasikob and Kenney and all the rest of them were heading for Biloxi.

So Senator Pat Harrison from Mississippi accompanied us, and that morning the senator went in to see President Coolidge about some matter of business connected with the government, and the President said to him:

"Senator, I see that Al Smith is going down to Mississippi."

Senator Harrison said, "Yes, and I am going with him," and the President said back to him, "Senator, tell him not to overlook Massachusetts."

That is an exact occurence, carried to me by Senator Harrison, and you may be sure that I remembered it. I did not overlook Massachusetts.

And I want to tell you that while the storm clouds were gathering pretty heavy on the horizon, I was in the old 69th regiment armory on Lexington ave., New York, and it was looking at those dark, black, cloudy figures coming from all over the country, and the two great bright spots in the East were Rhode Island and Massachusetts and it was with a heart full of gratitude with a spirit of devotion and affection for the people of these two States, that I came here to the East during this campaign to speak a word for the Democratic nominees in both states and to promote the election of a Democratic Congress.

Luna Park Menaced by $50,000 Blaze

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—Sudden fire roaring through the dry timber of a row of buildings in Coney Island today threatened Luna Park, the resort's largest playground. Four buildings were damaged to the extent of $50,000. The fire started in an automobile paint shop.

HEAD HUNTERS KILL 86 JAPS

Tokyo, Oct. 29 (AP)—The fury of an uprising by head-hunting savages in Central Formosa was attested today in a report received at the War Office saying the bodies of 86 Japanese, slain by the rebelling aborigines, had been found at Musha after a Japanese punitive expedition had brought its way through the marauders.

The punitive expedition occupied the town after battling the insurgents at Biloxi, or "Beauty Valley," on the western edge of the Musha district. Previous reports had indicated 240 Japanese were missing. The dispatch in the War Office left in doubt the fate of nearly 150 others. Thirty-one natives also said to have reached safety.

Included in the 86 dead were 23 women, 17 girls, 21 boys, 13 policemen and 12 male civilians, all Japanese.

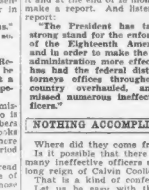
"We Couldn't 'Kid' the Kiddies"



GETTING the children to take their quota of milk every day became quite a problem. Not that they didn't like milk. They ate it on their breakfast cereal and drank it at luncheon. But dinner was a different story. They would eye their milk askance and drink it only under compulsion—acted as though afraid of it.

It got so serious that I told the family doctor about it. After a minute he asked, "Do you and your wife drink milk for dinner?" And when I replied—"N-no, guess we don't"—he said, "That's the answer. Suppose any one tried to make you eat a food which he himself wouldn't eat while at the very same table? You'd be suspicious, wouldn't you? You can't kid the kiddies and you need milk as well as they do." Funny we hadn't thought of that.

Now, we all have milk with our evening meal and all enjoy it—and feel better for it, too.

DEMOCRATS SEE FORECAST OF VICTORY IN OVATION TO SMITH

ELY PRAISED FOR HIS WORK IN CAMPAIGN OF 1928

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Fortified by the tremendous impetus given the campaign by Al Smith, Joseph B. Ely, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, accompanied by other candidates on the state ticket, today went into his home section in western Massachusetts.

Ely said his farewells and expressed his gratitude to the national Democratic chieftain at the South Station at midnight.

He then went to a hotel to rest in preparation for today's start of his last drive for votes in the section which he declares will send him into Boston on election day with a lead of 30,000 to 40,000.

The great reception given the "Happy Warrior" at the Arena last night rivaled in magnitude the demonstration given him two years ago when he was the presidential standard bearer of Democracy.

PREDICT VICTORY

Today local Democratic chieftains hailed it as the forerunner of a sweeping victory for the party's candidates on November 4.

As the outstanding issues, prohibition and unemployment were firmly established in the campaign by the "Great Commoner."

Party unity was never so much in evidence with Senator Walsh, Mayor Curley, former Mayors Peters and Fitzgerald, and Chairman Frank J. Donahue, all pulling together for the success of the candidates.

Amid prolonged cheering, the New York leader drove home point after point, scored the Hoover administration for breaking its promises for continued prosperity and charged lack of leadership.

PLEA FOR ELY

He made a dramatic personal plea for the election of Mr. Ely, when, turning to the candidate for governor, he said:

"I want to speak also, while I am here, in the double capacity both for benefit of the Commonwealth and for strong personal reasons, a word for my friend here in Massachusetts, for the election of the Democratic candidate for governor, Joseph B. Ely.

"At Madison sq. Garden in 1924, and at Houston, no representative in this country was more devoted to my cause than was Mr. Ely. He could not have been more steadfast nor more loyal if I had come from his own state. And nobody in the state of New York could have been more devoted to my cause than he was."

The distinguished speaker was caustic in his comments on the prohibition stand taken by the Republican party in Massachusetts.

He said he had thought that the Republicans of his own state were entitled to all the gold medals for the way they had dodged on the liquor issue, but that he was ready to take his hat off to the G. O. P. organization here. In comparison, he said, the New York Republicans are pikers.

TARIFF BILL SCORED

At the outset of his remarks the former governor revived some memories of the 1928 campaign when he jokingly used the word "raddio." The crowd caught on at once and cheered him to the echo. But later on, he used the same pronunciation formally, showing his faith in the correctness of its use.

The speaker took a fling at the tariff bill, and charged that the special session of Congress called to make limited provisions, ended up in a full and complete revision, something the people did not want.

"It has been said that the special interests concerned with revision of the tariff were in a hurry to collect and limited revision didn't sound as good to them," he declared.

He charged that the long period in which the bill was under discussion—a year, five months and 8 days,—was largely responsible for the unemployment today.

He declared that he had been informed that the tariff bill was framed in committee in the House with the Democratic members excluded from the room, so that the minority members would not know who had a hand in the framing of the measure.

Joe Grundy, he charged, who had contributed to the Hoover campaign, had demanded "delivery of the goods."

One aspect of the special session concerning farm relief, the former Governor said, would be discussed by him over the radio on the red network of the National Broadcasting Company tonight.

Senator Henry Parkman, of Boston, president of the Republican Club of Massachusetts, came in for some jashing on the part of Mr. Smith. A letter from Mr. Parkman to club members carried the sentence: "a critical election faces us."

"I would say so," declared the speaker and the crowd roared.

The former governor also wanted to know what had become of the prosperity that had been promised two years ago.

Everybody knows, he said, that prohibition is an issue in the campaign. The reason that nothing has been done about it, he charged to lack of leadership.

CITES CONVICTIONS

"The second thing the matter is that when we get a leader he lacks the guts, and he has not got the nerve to take up the cudgel and follow what is palpably the intention of the American people and that is the solution of this question."

The result of the general tightening up of law enforcement, he said, is apparent in the number of persons convicted of felonies.

He poked fun at the way men arrested for violation of the Eighteenth Amendment were threatened with the dire penalty of being extradited for the offense in New York. An investigation of what extradition meant, he said, disclosed that the judge asked the prisoner where he lived, the answer was in Canada and the judge gave this sentence:

"Well, you go home and don't come down here any more."

When these sentences became known, he declared, men from various cities in New York state suddenly developed an affection for Canada.

The New York Democratic plank on repeal, he said, is straight forward, honest and courageous. In event of repeal, and with the return of power to the states, the party pledges adoption of such regulatory measures by and in the state as will promote temperance, banish the saloon and recognize the principle of home rule in all communities.

Mr. Smith, in addition to urging the election of Mr. Ely for governor, urged his hearers to vote for Marcus A. Coolidge, and the rest of the Democratic candidates.

Cheers were given for Strabo V. Claggett for lieutenant-governor; Charles F. Hurley for treasurer; Francis X. Hurley for state auditor; Chester O'Brien for secretary of state, and Harold W. Sullivan for attorney-general.

WALSH SPEAKS

Senator Walsh, who presided at the rally, aroused the audience when he charged the administration at Washington with full responsibility for the tariff bill. In the last three campaigns, when the Democrats were trying to touch political idealism, he said, the Republicans defense was prosperity.

Now without the gold jingling and the full dinner pail, he said, it was possible to look back and analyze that prosperity and find that it was only for the special interests who have acquired 90 per cent of the wealth.

Former Mayor Peters ridiculed the Republicans for claiming all the virtues.

Mayor Curley got an ovation from the gathering when he urged the election of Ely and Coolidge.

The greater part of the mayor's remarks were directed against William M. Butler, G. O. P. senatorial candidate. He charged Butler with being an "autocrat" and a "Bourbon."

He asked the women of the State to remember that Butler was against women suffrage and to vote against him. He also attacked Butler for his membership in the Arkwright Club, which, he said, repeatedly opposed measures for the benefit of the working people.

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald attacked Gov. Allen for his failure to act promptly to relieve unemployment. He accused the governor of doing nothing to solve the automobile insurance burden, and scored him for his repeated assurances of confidence in the Boston police department under Police Commissioner Wilson.

It wasn't until State Senator Joseph Mulhern forced action on the Garrett case, he charged, that Allen acted. The governor then appointed Eugene C. Hultman as commissioner, Fitzgerald said, at the "behest of Charles H. Innes."

BUTLER CHALLENGED

He asserted that the governor again failed in the situation when he refused to make provision for the appointment of a police commissioner by the mayor of Boston.

Marcus A. Coolidge, in a brief address, praised Smith profusely and again challenged Butler to say where he stood on the Eighteenth Amendment.

Mr. Ely was given a tremendous hand when he was introduced. Much of his speech was devoted to the failure of Governor Allen to take the public into his confidence as to where he stood on the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and on the Boston El ownership referendum.

Chairman Frank J. Donahue, in a fiery speech, attacked the "Greens, Powers, Coffees, and Kinglets" as traitors to their party.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It is also absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. At the same time, it promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

When parents are divorced the children suffer. Little Christine Cromwell, often called the "poor little rich girl," lived with her mother nine months of the year and the other three months with her father. "Daddy" refused to send her back to her mother and the fight for her custody was reopened in the Providence, R. I., courts. Read the tragedy of this neglected little girl in the American Weekly section of the next Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Horse Show Is Gala Event

Gorgeous Gowns and Brilliant Uniforms of Army Teams Make Scene Colorful

THE OPENING OF THE Boston Horse Show was a smart, thrilling and brilliant event at the Boston Garden last evening. All of the boxes were filled with gorgeously gowned women and smartly turned out escorts and everyone in the social world seemed there. The visiting army teams made the scene more colorful with their brilliant uniforms and Maj. Patten in his blue cape lined with orange was a stunning figure, standing in the middle of the ring to judge the hunter class.

MANY OF THE LEADING members of hunt clubs in this State were present—Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Vaughan, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Goodwin, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ely Danielson, Mr. John R. Macomber, Mr. and Mrs. George S. West and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Almy. Mr. Adnah Newhart, the able secretary and chairman of the executive committee, was presented with a huge horseshoe of roses in appreciation of his efforts in making this one of the outstanding shows of the country, as well as an artistic and social success.

MRS. MURIEL VANDERBILT CHURCH was present in tailored costume of beige, very much interested in the success of one of her horses in the driving class. She will exhibit again during the week. Visitors from all over the country were present. Miss Pauline Moore of Morristown, N. J., who has entered several horses, being glimpsed in a beautiful green evening coat on long lines with cape trimmed with sable, wonderfully becoming to her pure blonde type. Mrs. J. Macey Willets of Marlboro rode to victory in the driving class and her daughters, Miss Julia and Miss Mary, exhibited their skill in the saddle class. Ex-Governor Alvan T. Fuller also attended with Mrs. Fuller and their daughters, very distinguished in their lovely evening wraps.

Boston Society Is Well Represented at Opening of Show

BOSTON SOCIETY WAS well represented with Mrs. Ronald Layman and a gay party among them Mrs. Harold Coolidge, Maj. Coltz, Mr. Arthur Derby and Mr. W. Astor Chanler. Mrs. Layman, whose costumes are always very Parisian in color and cut, wore a green lace gown with rose taffeta wrap tied closely around the throat, a new and chic note; Mrs. Coolidge was also very smart in white and gold ensemble. Petite Mrs. Robert Almy looked very charming indeed in turquoise blue gown with garniture on the shoulder and luxurious summer ermine evening cloak. She was like a tiny ice fairy completely surrounded by penguins in the persons of Robert Almy, Jr., her husband, Mr. J. Flick, Prof. Adams and Mr. H. H. Wanders, who were in her box party.

ANOTHER SCINTILLATING personality is Mrs. George S. West of Chestnut Hill, who was perfectly lovely in white. One can never record the details of Mrs. West's costumes, her smile quite outshines them. Her party was also large and merry, among them Mr. and Mrs. John G. Buller and Mr. Frederick Van Vesen of England. Mr. and Mrs. Grafton Smith were present, the former Janice Vaughan regal in mink coat and Patou pink gown and Mrs. Sumner Pingree looked well in blue with white fur evening coat. Her mother, Mrs. Weld, was especially lovely in black chantilly with ermine collared cloak.

MISS SYLVIA WARREN WAS in beige lace, Mrs. Thomas Proctor, 2nd, in white satin with white fur cloak, a bright note of color her slippers of jade green. Others from Hamilton were Mr. and Mrs. Neil Rice and Mrs. John R. Chapin, Mrs. Rice appearing particularly lovely as a patrician in black velvet and ermine. Mrs. Chapin will have a debutante daughter in present next season.

Copley-Plaza Barn Dance Draws Social Leaders After Show

AFTER THE SHOW WAS over, the gay throngs wended their way to the Copley-Plaza to the barn for a supper and dance. The entire interior of the ballroom had been covered with canvas and painted by a scenic artist to resemble the inside of a barn with beams and rafters, from which lanterns hung, thereby carrying out realistically the stable effect. At one end was an open door opening onto a village street, and inside was an old horse, creating quite a rustic effect. The boxes were arranged as stalls and the whole atmosphere was convincingly unique.

MISS MIRIAM WINSLOW, who earlier in the evening exhibited in the ring, entertained the crowd with original dances, and Miss Marian Chase sang cronty songs in her inimitable way. Fred and Adele Astaire, famous dancers from the show, "Smiles," coming in after their evening performance as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Almy. It was a great show and, if this is a sample of the program for the week, no one should miss it.

A GROUP OF DEBUTANTES ushered at the lecture in Symphony hall last evening by Mr. Kermit Roosevelt. Miss Barbara Young headed the list and Eleanor Ives, Caroline Hunnewell, Anne Warren, Sarah Paifrey, Nancy Ayer and Frances Gardiner assisted her.

ABOUT 60 DEBS ATTENDED the coming out of Miss Mary Ilsley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Ilsley, at the Milton Club, yesterday. Miss Ilsley is a provisional member of the Junior League.

State Federation Pledges Its Support to Governor in Campaign for Jobs

By NANCY BREWSTER

Announcement of a committee of key women in the State Federation upon whom Governor Allen and his citizens committee may rely in the solution of the unemployment problem is expected as the next move by that body, following the passage of an emergency resolution pledging support and co-operation to the governor at the Worcester meeting yesterday.

The recognition of the present crisis by the presentation of this emergency resolution met with instant approval of the 1100 delegates gathered from all over the state. Many delegates voiced their admiration for the new president, Mrs. Carl L. Schrader, in having this measure, offered by Mrs. Robert J. Culbert, placed before the convention.

COOPERATION IS KEYNOTE

"We are cooperating with both the city and state committees in the unemployment situation," Mrs. Eva Whiting White, president of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union told the convention. "And although we have felt the business depression like other firms we have not discharged a single one of our 100 employes.

"The board felt that we should stand behind those who have served us long and faithfully at a time like this, even if we have to go into debt to do it."

Mrs. White explained the far reaching effect of her organization in the business life of the city, its achievements over a period of years and the public confidence in the Women's Educational and Industrial Union as shown by the fact that 1037 cases have been brought before the newly formed department of consumers' advice and assistance, within the past year.

SHOPS AID UNION

There are several restaurants, a bookshop, a food shop and the handwork shop, which make a profit and help carry on the departments engaged in purely philanthropic endeavors, Mrs. White explained.

How clubwomen are rising to community needs was pointed out by Mrs. Axel A. Packard, director from Massachusetts in the General Federation, who spoke on " A Glimpse Into the Future."

"Clubwomen are taking an increasingly vital part in bringing about co-operation in the world's work," Mrs. Packard said, after acknowledging a spontaneous ovation from the delegates.

WOMEN EMANCIPATED

"When we consider that less than 50 years ago no woman stood on a public platform and pleading called shameless, how short a time ago education was open to women, the vast pageant of our past achievements points to a glorious future."

The widening of the Federation's interests, and the deepening of its vision in its environment were stressed by the speaker as being the keynote of its progress.

Endorse Candidacy of Mrs. Grace Poole for Federation Head

In a resolution seconded by a score of club leaders, the State Federation unanimously pledged its loyal support to the candidacy of Mrs. Grace Hamilton Poole for the presidency of the General Federation of Women's Clubs for the biennial period of 1932-34, at the fall business meeting at Worcester yesterday. She was lauded for her breadth of vision, her gracious personality, and her fitness for the highest office in the American club world.

College Girls Prefer the Knit Costume

By ANN ARDEN

STROLL ACROSS the campus of any of our Eastern colleges and four out of five of the myriad of girls seen will be wearing knit ensembles. The gamut of color that meets your eyes will be dazzling bright rust shades; dark greens and browns will be seen repeatedly, but green seems to be liked best this season. The knit suit, with slightly flaring skirt, and matching jacket for extra warmth—worn with a slip-over sweater—is almost a uniform.

SUCH AN one is pictured here—but smart enough for shopping and lunching in town and wearing to sports events under a topcoat of tweed or informal fur. A knit costume from Chanel in dark green wool, the skirt has group of pleats at left side front. The wrist length jacket is buttoned low, has two patch pockets and round collar and cuffs of white pique. The long-sleeved jersey blouse boasts plaidwise stripes of dark green, light green, and yellow, and buttons close to the throat. The hat is of green felt, its curved brim held with speckled brown feather low on right side. A capacious bag of green leather is carried.

JERSEY incorporates with other materials this season, or contributes some of its character in such fabrics as tweed weave jersey and angora jersey. The jumper frock that is in action almost wherever one turns, often uses these two materials.

FLECKED WOOLENS are present as often as plain—and one quite forgets, sometimes, to analyze frock detail, being so fascinated by a handsome fabric.

THIS IS for the first few minutes only, of course, for details such as wide, crushable patent leather belts, large metal buckles, white wool trims and sometimes actually scarfs of snowy galyak can scarcely fail to impress themselves during even the briefest shopping review.

PLAIDS LEND a youthful, jaunty air to the sports mode. Frequently limited to scarf, beret or large 'kerchief, there are also whole suits of plaid. Plaid blouses accent the plain suit of monotone tweed. A sports outfit is often trimmed with plaid woolen. Broken plaids are a new development in silk and wool fabric.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WHDH.

BOY CRAFTSMEN START CONTEST OF SKILL

This is the day for which many New England boys have waited. It is the "kick-off" day in the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild competition for four university scholarships and 980 other valuable awards offered for proficiency in craftsmanship.

The Boston American publishes herewith the first of the supplementary instructions to which membership in the Boston American Chapter of the Guild entitles boys of this section.

This material was prepared by an expert, to provide detailed guidance in every step involved in building the miniature model Napoleonic coach. It provides everything entrants will need except materials and skill. It is suggested that the reader clip this material and paste it into a scrapbook for future reference.

PLENTY OF TIME

Study carefully the accompanying picture of the magnificent master model coach constructed by Fisher craftsmen. Then proceed with the work, referring constantly to directions and keeping in mind that you have several months in which to finish the job.

The Boston Evening American invites every boy between 12 and 19 inclusive to take advantage of the benefits of chapter membership by enrolling at once. There is still ample time to get in. Simply enroll with any General Motors dealer. Your name will be added to the roster, and you will be sent detailed plans from Guild headquarters in Detroit. There are no dues nor fees.

Following is the first of the series of the instructions:

FOLLOW THE PLAN

1. Start with floor, front and rear panel pieces. For these, dress a piece of pine, or other soft wood, to size 1 3/4x4x14 inches.

2 Square both ends with a plane, checking by square.

3 Draw a center line lengthwise on board.

4 Lay out each end of board exactly 3 3/4 inches (at both ends) from center line, and square across with knife and try square.

5 Lay out lengthwise marking lines 1 3/4 inches on each side of this center line and square lines across surface for floor recess. Gauge depth of recess, 3/4 inch, between these lines. Your board layout should look like the one in illustration 1.

7 Make template No. 1 (see your Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild drawing sheet) out of cardboard or thin wood.

8 Mark both of the ends with template and cut to shape.

9 Cut across lines indicated for floor recess to proper depth. (Have saw cuts come inside your lines.)

10 With a sharp chisel, carefully cut out stock for the recess. Finish with sandpaper. (Safety first. Handle chisel carefully!)

PANEL BOARD

11. Now cut off the two end panel boards, sawing between the lines marking ends of rear panel on floor board. Square the ends carefully to the lines with a plane. These ends must be square.

12 You are now ready to glue the end panels to the floor panel. Notice in Fig. 2 of your Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild drawing, that the end pieces rest on top of floor board. To fasten these pieces together, four or five 1¼-inch brads and some glue will do. Set the brads deep enough to clear curve of bottom of coach. Check job inside and out with try square.

13. Make the side panels and roof board next. For these you will need a piece of pine or other soft wood 1 3/4x4 3/4 inches. Proceed as in Step 2.

15. Mark one edge of board top. From this edge measure 1 5/16 inches and draw a line across panels for back line. Keep lines square and indicated in illustration No. 2.

16 Cut off side panel pieces and square ends carefully. Save the remainder of the board, will be used for the top.

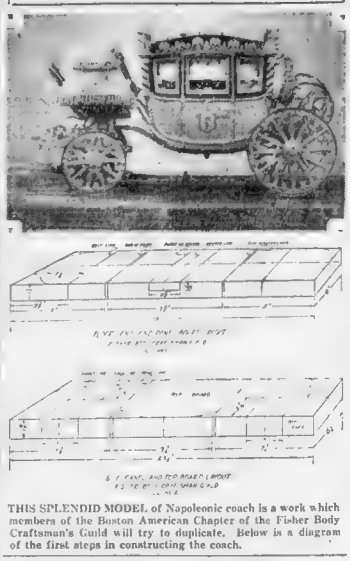
USE SANDPAPER

17 Make a cardboard or wood template of curve at bottom of side panels. This is obtained by tracing the shape from your guild drawing, side view, with carbon paper. Lay out carefully on the pieces. (Notice that the belt line is not in the center of the panel.)

Skill Can Win Scholarships

Boys! Have you enrolled in the Boston American Chapter of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild? Four four-year university scholarships, worth $5000 each, are among the awards offered in the guild's miniature model coach building contest. There is still time to enroll. The following article shows how the Boston American Chapter will assist every member in winning one of these 984 awards. It also explains how you can enroll NOW.

Plans for Prize Coach



THIS SPLENDID MODEL of Napoleonic coach is a work which members of the Boston American Chapter of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild will try to duplicate. Below is a diagram of the first steps in constructing the coach.

Have the bottom curve located on proper side of the belt line.

18. Work bottom sweep of side pieces to shape with a coping saw plane and sandpaper.

19. Using one of the side panel pieces as a pattern or template (see Guild drawing), bend and shape floor pieces to match. Use coping saw, plane and sandpaper.

21. Shape the top board to outline shown on your Guild drawing.

22. Tack the side panels in the assembly and using top board just made as a pattern, mark off the side panel contour. (See illustration on Guild drawing).

23. Remove the end panels and work outside contour to shape, using template No. 2 for checking your work across width of panel (see drawing) and template No. 3 to check your work from top to bottom of panel (see end of panel drawing). Working the panels to shape may be done by means of chisel, spokeshave, coping saw or plane. Finish with sandpaper.

24. Check the finished panel with a fairing stick, diagonally. (Note: Fairing stick can be any thin piece of wood that will bend over surface without breaking). By chalking the bottom edge of the fairing stick, high surfaces can be detected from the chalk markings left. These should be worked down until you have a contour that is free from high or low surfaces. Remember, any irregularities in the surface will show up very plainly when the finish is put on.

Questions and Answers

The Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild maintains a question and answer department for the use of its members. Questions concerning the model Napoleonic coach will be answered through the columns of this newspaper. Following are a few of the questions received to date, and the answers.

Q—How long will I have in which to build my model Napoleonic coach?

A—All models must be at Guild headquarters, Detroit, on or before June 1, 1931.

Q—What is the best wood for making my model?

A—For the body white pine, basswood or other soft easily worked woods. For the wheels, white pine or mahogany. For the axles and pole, mahogany, birch, or other hard wood. These are merely suggestions. Use any wood you have at hand if you cannot obtain the woods mentioned. The wood will be painted and will not show.

Q—May I work on my model in manual training class without affecting my standing in the guild?

A—Work on the model may be done anywhere. We suggest that you get your shop teachers, your father, or anyone who can help you interested in your work. The only requirement placed on you is that you do the work yourself, if you expect to compete for the awards. Some boys are forming Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild coach-building guilds in their schools or Scout troops. Your teachers or others will be glad to sponsor such a guild.

Q—Will there be any dues, fees or obligations if I join the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild?

A—No. The guild provides guild button, coach drawings, instructions, colored prints and other material absolutely free of charge, and without obligation of any kind. Go to your nearest General Motors dealer. He will gladly enroll you without any cost, and the guild will then send you a membership card and the other supplies.

WINTERFRONT IS IMPROVED

In addition to the Winterfront's previous features a new control is provided on the new Pontiac which greatly increases the efficiency of cold weather radiator protection W. J. Connell, New England distributor says. This is a closing device, conveniently placed on the front of the Winterfront. A pull of this lever, and the shutters of the Winterfront close, thus retaining the heat under the hood. The Winterfront is restored to operation, automatically, when the car is running again.

"The new Pontiac models have been changed in design in accordance with the latest style developments of leading motor cars," he says. "Of the streamline type, with vertical shutters, their appearance is the same as those included on the finest motor cars, and they add beauty and dignity to any car on which they are installed.

"With these new improvements, the hand-closing device and the new smarter style, the new Pontiac Winterfront models have also been substantially reduced in price.

"Unless the mechanism of tuned motors is protected from cold weather, excessive dilution, over-choking, fouled spark plugs, high carbonization and a great many other cold weather evils will cause motorists a great deal of winter driving trouble. This can be easily prevented by the installation of a winterfront.

MORE SERVICE ON CADILLACS

To insure still more complete satisfaction, and to further the unsurpassed record Cadillac and LaSalle cars by their owners, to simplify and make more convenient the securing of authorized service and lubrication; the Cadillac Motor Car Co. now extends its new standard owners' service contract to every dealer point in the country. The benefits of this contract, according to Nicholas Dreystadt, general parts and service manager, are now available to every Cadillac and LaSalle new car purchaser.

Under the terms of this contract the Cadillac or LaSalle owner pays a nominal yearly sum, in advance to his dealer. The dealer, in return, agrees to furnish all necessary labor and material including lubricants, for the maintenance of the owner's car for 12000 miles or 12 months, whichever comes first.

Through this plan Cadillac-LaSalle owners may fully protect the investment in their cars, and insure to themselves the greatest amount of driving satisfaction with the fewest possible interruptions. The dealer furnishes regular lubrication in accordance with the factory schedule every 1000 miles or once a month. A thorough inspection of the car is made every 1000 miles or once a month to anticipate the need for adjustment or repairs, thus eliminating them between inspections.

SAFETY FOUND IN NEW NASH

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 29—Safety at high speeds under the rapidly changing conditions of present day traffic is the outstanding feature of the new Nash models introduced by the Nash Motors Company to set higher economic standards and give motorists "a new deal for today's dollar," it was pointed out today by C. H. Bliss, sales manager of the company.

"Students of highway transportation," he said, "who have waited eagerly for the opportunity to study in detail the engineering features of the four new Nash groups of cars—the Twin-Ignition Eight-80, Twin-Ignition Eight-80, the powerful Eight-70, and the new Nash Six—point to three primary attainments which particularly fit them for the rigors of present day traffic.

First they consider the power and smoothness of all four of the new Nash engines more than sufficient to meet the hardest driving tests. Second, they point to the new and astonishing ease of control which brings instant response to the driver's touch and a degree of flexible action in the longest turns. Third, and most significant, they declare that the brake power throughout the new Nash series has contributed largely to the practical utilization of the great power and speed developed by the advanced design motors.

Mail Carrier Drives Ford 73,000 Miles in Year

Over 73000 miles in less than a year is the record of a Ford tudor owned by E. D. Kinsman, rural mail carrier of Charles City, Ia. Practically the entire mileage for the period was for mail route purposes, as Kinsman has driven the car only a few hundred miles for pleasure.

The car has never failed to go when I was ready," Mr. Kinsman said. "Even the starter did the trick last winter at 44 degrees below zero. The car runs about 20 miles per gallon. At times I pull a trailer when ever I have a bulky load."

Many Auto Tourists Visit Yellowstone

California led all other states in the number of motor tourists visiting Yellowstone National Park during the months of May, June and July. The state furnished 4781 cars carrying 13,953 passengers, while Montana, a close second, was represented by 3790 cars and 12,485 passengers.

Canada was well represented, 486 cars carrying 1646 passengers, being listed. There were also motor tourists from Alaska, Hawaii, Mexico, China, Canal Zone, and Porto Rico.

Politics Brings Back College Life to Mrs. Morrow

Paterson, N. J., Oct. 29 (AP) Arguments against women in politics remind Mrs. Dwight W Morrow of what she heard in girlhood.

"Before I went to college," she said in a speech at the Y. M. C. A., "I heard people tell my father that if I went to college I would not marry, for college women never did; and that if I did marry I would not make a good housewife and that I would not bring up my children properly. I am married and I want to say that I have had a most happy life."

STUDENTS DEFY POLICE IN RIOT AT BROWN

Providence, R. I., Oct. 29 (AP) Defying police, students in Caswell and Bruononia halls, dormitories of Brown University, indulged in an orgy of battle and furniture tossing for an hour and a half last night and early this morning, causing Trayer st., between Georgs and Manning st. to be closed to traffic.

Shortly before midnight, according to police, the students started tossing bottles, mattresses, desks and broken furniture out of their windows.

Patrolman George F. Hughes, patrolling the route near the university, summoned Lieut. Sheridan and a squad of police from Precinct 3 station.

DEBRIS IN STREET

Police found the street in front of both dormitories strewn with broken glass and debris, and a motorist, who refused to reveal his identity, reported that one tire on his automobile had been slashed by broken glass.

Lieut. Sheridan assigned patrolmen to close Thayer st. to traffic and urged Paul Snyder president of the Cammarian Club to stop the disturbance Snyder told the lieutenant that he had done all in his power to stop the students, but they refused to listen to him

Dean Samuel Arnold was notified at his Matflower st. residence and Dean Kenneth O. Mason at his home on Medway st. Dean Arnold came to the scene, but the boys continued throwing articles out of the windows and shouting at police until 12:30 o'clock, when the disturbance quieted down.

2 WOMEN NEARLY HURT

President Barbour later turned over the college chapel exercises to Snyder, who reproved the students. It was learned that two women narrowly escaped injury by a table tossed out of a window

While college authorities refused to comment on the disturbance, police insisted that the original report of the incident was correct.

"It is about time," Chief of Police William F. O'Neil said, "the college authorities took some disciplinary measures to prevent recurrence of this sort of thing. Expulsions and suspensions would do it."

Detective, Duped by Fake Bomb, Gets Last Laugh

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—When a stranger asked Prosperino Razzano to construct a bomb for him Razzano thought it a good joke to humor him with a fake bomb, but now he has some doubt about it.

At first reluctant he finally acquiesced when offered $100 down and $150 more on delivery. So he made a "bomb" of a length of rubber hose, several bits of broken tile, a few old socks and enclosed a note which read

"Big boom. Go work. Tanks for money."

But when he delivered the bomb he found the stranger was Detective Eugene Canevari who had received information that Razzano was a bomb-maker for gangsters. And when the detective found the bomb was a dud he arrested Razzano for obtaining money under false pretenses.

"GANGSTER GIRL"

by Jack Lait

A Sequel to "Put On the Spot"; Thrilling Gangster Expose

Annie Gives Once Over to 'Silk's' Rooms

THE UNIFORMED doorman bent toward the Big Shot and whispered: "Biff Glasson—in the lobby." Freeman didn't answer.

What Has Happened So Far.

Polack Annie, red-haired beauty of the Chicago underworld, after killing two gang leaders to avenge the slaying of her sweetheart, comes to New York and appeals for protection to Silk Freeman, a big shot racketeer. He provides an expensive hotel suite for her and tells her he wants her to help him muscle in on the beauty parlor racket and make millions. She goes with Freeman to a fashionable restaurant for dinner and while there wins the admiration of Tom Gillespie, college man and son of a millionaire who has made his money in the trucking business. Gillespie's companion, Alice Schuyler, a society girl, resents his interest in Annie and asks him to go. Later Freeman takes Annie to his apartment.

Now Go on with the Story.

CHAPTER 5

TALL TOM GILLESPIE had gone through enough to entitle himself to the claim that he was a man.

He had landed in Castle Garden, an Irish immigrant kid. He had looked for the gold they had said was in the streets—all he had found was mud. He was the oldest of thirteen children and the dirt-floored hut had been just big enough for the next dozen, the parents and the cow. So he had been pushed out. He had six or eight kinsmen in New York. But they were all traveling out of the same station. He was still too young to be a policeman. So he got a job driving a wagon.

From that start, reins in hand, Tall Tom became the owner of the wagon, another one, the stable, more stables; and by the time motor trucking came in, he was a Tammany leader, a rich man, the husband of Nora Quinn, and the father of a boy. He didn't care any more for that son than he did for his both eyes. His sentiment for Tommy went double.

A Born Leader

He still drove with reins in his hand. Tom Gillespie was born a leader—whether of Tammany or the impoverished tenant farmers of his county, or a South Sea island, if he landed there.

He had come up through the competition of New York money-making and the dirt and shenanigan and intrigue of Manhattan politics. And his word was currency and his promise was security.

Now he had lived to see his boy, the son of the son of the son of an impoverished Irish farmer who had scrabbled for a living on a flinty four-acre patch of worthless soil, a Yale graduate, a celebrity, a wholesome and handsome youngster with brains, body and bulldog in his make-up.

When Silk Freeman's Hispano-Suiza drew up to the door of his Park ave. apartment house, wherein on the eighth floor he had his hide-away, his sanctum and his hop-nest, the uniformed doorman, who packed a gat under his ornate harness, and who looked as smart as any door-opener on the street, bent toward the Big Shot and whispered:

Biff in Lobby

"Biff — Glasson — in the lobby."

Freeman didn't answer him. He just guided Polack Annie toward the door and followed her in. He addressed the elevator man, who had an automatic in his armpit, too, and said out of the side of his mouth:

"Take the lady up—get her in—I'll be right along."

The elevator man guided Annie toward the lighted lift. He slid the door back at the eighth, knocked on the metal portal opposite with just such a succession of taps, and the door opened.

Annie saw a bent, aged man. He didn't see her—much. He never raised his eyes, surely not his head. He waved toward a roomy chair. Annie slumped into its hospitable embrace.

"May I serve you a drink?" asked the servant.

Annie smiled.

With Tammany

"Scotch—straight, old-timer, she answered. "You've done a bit in stir. How's YOUR folks?"

"Yes, ma'am," he replied, and shuffled out for the liquor.

Annie's eyes roved. She saw a windowless room. The furnishings were antiques. The carpets were high and thick and furry. Everything had solidity and substantiality.

So—this was the retreat—the home—of Silk Freeman, the Big Shot!

To this fastness he had brought her, Polack Annie!

The servant sing-songed in with the Scotch. Annie threw it down. It was good.

"Get this, Chief," Glasson was saying, downstairs. "I've piped off this Gillespie set-up. He's hooked in wit' Tamm'ny an' he's no pushover. But he can be looken. The dough he's knockin' off is a crime. If we can muscle in on that river-front stevedorin'-truckin' outfit, B. B., we're ridin' high,

TWOHIG FLAYS 'L' FOR POOR SERVICE

N. E. Council Aids Jobless

WORKERS AND 12 SENATORS EMPLOYERS AT LAST RITES LISTED FOR TARBELL

Maintenance of Buying Power Declared Essential in Present Situation

New England Council joined the move for relief of unemployed today with a registration of those needing work and appeals to mayors and chambers of commerce for aid.

The industrial committee of the council called on manufacturers' associations in the six New England states for a mobilization of all available work with a view to placing the greatest number of workers.

Forms for "Those Who Want to Work" and "To the Public" were prepared by the committee to aid in the listing of those seeking jobs and those who can place the unemployed.

FIRST STEP OF MOVE

James W. Hook, chairman of the industrial committee, cited the listing as the first step in the move

"Through such means every community could almost instantly attain an exact appraisal of both the extent and the effects of unemployment," he said.

"The more promptly communities register their workers needing jobs, the better equipped they will be to co-operate with the governors of their states and through them the President's emergency committee.

"The biggest job before New England today is to maintain purchasing power. Maintaining employment is not entirely the work of manufacturers.

SHARE RESPONSIBILITY

"All business and all community interests and all governmental officials share in the responsibility for helping to mobilize all possible work and to insure its application to the greatest number of needy."

The form for the worker calls for information relative to the applicant's trade or occupation, the number in the family and references to last employment.

The employers are asked to file the kind of work they can furnish, the number of hours, days or weeks and the salaries.

John J. Doolin Freed of False Alarm

John J. Doolin, vice-president of the International Longshoremen's Association, was found not guilty by Charlestown Court of ringing a false alarm Sept. 4 last. Joseph Lockl, of Medford, also was found not guilty. Frank Finneran, 32, of Carney st., Charlestown, was found guilty and sentenced to three months in the House of Correction on appeal and was held in $300 for Superior Court.

Jury Hears Wife in 'White Slave' Trial

Admission her husband and father knew she was taking an auto trip from Chicago to Boston with Guy Fastia of Quincy was made today in Federal Court by Mrs. Rose Capel, 21, "gypsy princess," before Judge Lowell and a jury. Mrs. Capel is testifying against Fastia, on trial on a "white slavery" charge.

American Story Wins Aid for Mother of Six

It will be a bit brighter for a few days in the home of Mrs. Margaret Driscoll at 200 Hampden st., Roxbury, where she and her six boys have been making a desperate struggle for existence since the father vanished three weeks ago.

As the result of a story Monday in the Boston Evening American, detailing the plight of the family, a check for $15 to be given to Mrs. Driscoll was received by this newspaper today from William Appleton of 74 Beacon st.

Mrs. Driscoll's home has been without food or fuel for desperate periods, despite aid given by the city—aid which is welcome enough, but which is not sufficient to take care of a family of seven.

Quincy Libraries Looted

Two branches of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy, have been looted, it was revealed last night by Quincy police.

PLOT ON SMITH LAID TO COOK

"A dastardly attempt to defeat Al Smith in the presidential election in Massachusetts" was charged to Secretary of State Frederic W Cook last night in a radio address by Chester J. O'Brien, Democratic nominee for the position Cook holds.

O Brien related the story of how Mayor Murphy of Somerville in court forced a change in the batch of ballots to correct a condition which, it was claimed, confused the voters wishing to vote for Smith

"Cook, the payroll patriot, secretly, silently and with consummate skill of a designing mind, drew up the ballot in such an ingenious fashion that thousands of citizens wishing to vote for Governor Smith would, through the tricky arrangement of this ballot, vote for the Workers" party candidate," said O'Brien.

"If Cook had not been apprehended by alert citizens in time, Smith would have lost the State."

CLAIMS DANA IS IGNORING NEEDS OF PUBLIC

McGrath and Sullivan Join in Denouncing Fare System and Trustees

A vigorous attack against the present management of the Boston Elevated for the curtailment of service in Boston proper was made today by Representative James J. Twohig of South Boston.

His attack was made before the Public Utilities Commission at a hearing on a proposed bus route between the Northampton Elevated station and the Savin Hill station of the Dorchester Rapid Transit.

Twohig, a prominent advocate of public ownership of the Boston Elevated, did not limit his attack to the curtailment of service but vigorously opposed the fare system and the activities of the public trustees.

"Service on the road within the four-mile radius has been curtailed to offset falling earnings and prevent a deficit being assessed on the cities and towns," declared Representative Twohig.

"The purpose of this is to pacify the people of these cities and towns until after the State election. The Boston Elevated Company at the present time is being operated by General Manager Dana, not for the public, but for the company.

"It is high time the public trustees of this big street railway system did their duty and had the road operated for the benefit of the public."

City Councilor McGrath accused officials of the road with "bad faith" toward the public. He said he believed the officials intended operating buses over the proposed route only as far as Edward Everett sq., although there is much need of a good service over the entire route, thus linking up the Elevated with the Dorchester rapid transit system.

Representative Lewis Sullivan, Jr., urged the commissioners to investigate the use of old buses by the Elevated on the so-called belt line between Uphams Corner, Codman sq. and Fields Corner, Dorchester. He said these buses are a hazard to life and limb and a menace to the community.

Mother of George and Thomas Carens Dead

Mrs. Catherine Carens, widow of Thomas H. Carens, formerly of Arlington, died suddenly early today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank J. Leahy, in Marlboro st., Wellington.

Mrs. Carens had been in failing health for several years. She was a native of Salem. She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Leahy, and by two sons, George C. Carens, sporting editor of the Boston Transcript and Thomas Carens, former Washington correspondent of the Boston Herald, and now assistant to the president of the New England Power Association. She also leaves a sister, who is Sister Ignatius of the Angels, a member of the faculty at Trinity College, Washington, D. C.

The funeral will be held Friday at 8:30 a. m. from the home of her daughter, and a solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated at 10 o'clock in St. Agnes' Church, Arlington, of which Mrs. Carens was a communicant for nearly 40 years. Burial will be in Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, Arlington.

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received, $10 for the next best, $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

BREEN'S COUNSEL IN CLASH ON HULTMAN VIEW OF PADLOCK LAW

First Nighters Find Laughs in "Smiles"

A MERRY LAUGH was had by Miss Alice Elwell of Weston at the opening performance of "Smiles." She and Maj. Walsh were among the first-night audience at the Colonial on the night. (Staff photo.)

NOTABLE AMONG "first nighters" at the premiere of Ziegfeld's "Smiles" at the Colonial last night was Maj. Thomas L. Walsh, brother of Senator David I. Walsh.

"SMILES," GREATEST ZIEGFELD EPIC, ACCLAIMED AT COLONIAL

THREE-STAR PRODUCTION FLAWLESS AT PREMIERE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

MORE AND MORE we are coming to believe there is some hidden magic in the Ziegfeld touch. In the case of "Smiles," which paraded the Colonial stage last night, and took the town into its arms, you were gently reminded that a Ziegfeld premiere in musical comedy invariably turns itself into an interesting story before the day is done. There was no doubt of it last night. Mr. Ziegfeld once more led a triumphant assemblage of actors, singers and dancers through bewildering scenes to newer heights and to broader fields of art and entertainment.

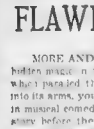
THOSE OF US and there are many, who imagined that Mr. Ziegfeld's Show Boat had exhausted the outer limits of theatrical embellishment and edit of mass now recent and spacefully make excuses for hasty judgment for Smiles the future is so quite just as it is Boston



Nick Young

Mr. Young's easy command of experience Manhattan when it moves into Mr. Ziegfeld's own temple of taste on Boylston street in another fourth act. A this may be just another indication of the professional expertness of Ziegfeld and his staff, but I don't propose to open a Jimmie Joe fight.

WITH AN EXCELLENT EYE Mr. Ziegfeld has chosen, in Justice Conroy, the Dolly Madison of the musical audience, an actress in fluent command of all the Muller and the Astaire dancing. An actress who knows how to put a song over for seem and when find a the Ziegfeldian beauties was proud and a musical comedy performance was unfortunate that it was beyond explosive we since Dolly Sisters, of musical fame, has enjoyed the sense of most good dancing as time these excellent players seemed almost motionless for how we found that have only to be forgotten are actions had come by book and score.

BUT SMILES must be taken in place when Mr. Ziegfeld sleuth is dancing and singing on the stage. Jessie was never hardly less comic if at all to life the fascinating exhibitions of Fred and Dave Fox. I applaud the performance with respect that caught every nuance of comedy that went straight over funny bone in the audience. Howard's was div and infectious. Foy's gangling, knock-kneed and boyish and with plain appealing to the man whose heart was set against smiling for you have here a masterpiece in musical romance. Paul Gregory took an easy hand and followed through to the end in both song and dance.

FROM WILLIAM ANTHONY McGUIRE I like typewriter come the story of Smiles. It was conventional and consistent, but a plum of a waif by four sisters in prince. And in this matter Smiles proved by Miss Muller, Foy, herself in America after the war, with Pa fathers in the hinds. Out of these interesting strands was evolved a romance danced to the most accomplished Joseph Urban settings and masses of rich colour and costume and spectacle. It was fast and brought up to date and made more fascinating than ever.

OF SPECIAL NUMBERS THAT stirred the big first night audience the Astaires put over "If I Were You Love" an completely lost the show name to a full stop, while Marcelles by Miss Muller and a fat ensemble, almost forced the audience from its contemplative to Foy's applause the performance with respect that caught every nuance of comedy that went straight over funny bone in the audience. Howard's

FRANK BORZAGE TO DIRECT "DOCTORS' WIVES" FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29. Physicians' and surgeons' wives have the most dangerous rivals in the world in their husbands' patients, according to "Doctors' Wives," a novel by Henry and Sylvia Lieferant. Any doctor will leave any wife at any time providing he is needed at the bedside of some sick person. The book presents this subject in such an interesting light that John Considine, Jr., will produce it for his second Fox production.

You can easily see what Johnny and the Fox Company think of this novel for Frank Borzage, one of the best directors in the picture business will have charge of the production. Considine Jr. will also have an active hand in the making of the picture. Borzage is known for his good taste, and if art has not been lost in the hard rules of the times. From the pen of Frank Craven, who may be seen in Mr. Z. Sale, the picture will be a success in all respects.

Tallulah Parsons

Marion Grant in "The Middle Watch" Cast

Marion Grant, former Boston favorite, is now with the St. James company engaged to play the part of Mary in "The Middle Watch" at the Copley, Hellowell production from the pen of Ian Hay and Stephen King-Hall, has to do with two girls who are aboard the cruiser Kilda and a merry chase when they are unexpected aboard the cruiser Devon.

That reminds me that Axelle A. William K. Howard production which was to have been John Considine's first, has been postponed in favor of an original by William Anthony McGuire. Bill Howard will do the McGuire number first, principal, because it was difficult to get just the right cast for "Axelle."

ADOLF HITLER FEATURED IN NEWS REEL

Adolf Hitler, commonly referred to as "Germany's new Mussolini" and the latest figure to gain international prominence, is shown in closeup as he reviews a parade of his staunch followers in this week's issue of the Hearst Metrotone News, showing at Loew's State next to President Hindenburg, who is also heard speaking to the people. Hitler is Germany's outstanding figure today. The recent election increased his power in the Reichstag greatly, until alarm because of his warlike utterances.

Plenty of thrills are to be found in the issue of Hearst Metrotone news which is now showing at Loew's Orpheum Theater. First, the audience is treated to the spectacle of hunting lions. After many exciting moments the beasts are captured alive.

Then into the air goes the intrepid cameraman to obtain pictures of the stunt pilots taking part in the recent Legion show in Trenton, N. J. Al Williams, express flier, gives a daring exhibition of skilled flying.

MET BIRTHDAY TOMORROW

Coming Events

"The Middle Watch," a merry comedy of the sea, will be Mr. Chase's next offering at the Copley, starting Friday.

Madge Kennedy in Michael and Mary will open into the Plymouth next Monday.

Street Scene, a drama of life on the east side of Manhattan, will come to the Wilbur next Monday.

Maurice Maeterlinck in "The Miracle of Venice" will be the attraction at the Tremont starting Monday, Nov. 10.

HELL'S ANGELS CLOSES NOV. 8

"Hell's Angels" will not terminate its engagement at the Tremont Theater next Saturday. A last minute rush to see the big thriller as it has been presented in New York and Hollywood has brought the weeks attendance over to the capacity mark and has influenced Howard Hugh's to extend the run another week.

It will mean, Saturday night, November 8 with a record of 11 weeks the longest to be presented by a talking picture in Boston. The eight weeks run of the long Metromark picture "Song o' My Heart" was the longest up to this time.

Xmas Fund Shows Being Held Up by Greedy Boxers ↕ Boxing Doomed Unless Quick Action Is Taken

Abolish Guarantees, Refuse Sanction of Setups

For more than a month your humble correspondent has been putting in most of his daylight hours and some of his nights trying to arrange sporting events for the Christmas Fund of THE BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN. This year, with hard times menacing everybody, thousands unemployed, business at the lowest ebb in the history of the country, the situation is particularly acute. Something besides loyalty to this paper has spurred us on. We know what it is to be out of a job and have felt the pinch of hard times. We could not consider ourself a man if, with the opportunity in front of us to do something for those less fortunate than ourselves, we did not put our shoulder to the wheel and work as never before.

Mention of this is being made[illegible] to help you to understand we know whereof we speak. The arranging of these various charity sporting events, which in a few days we hope to be able to make public, has brought us in close contact with sports celebrities, managers and others professionally identified with sport, those who make a business of sport, particularly those who have waxed wealthy and affluent through sport, for it was headliners we were after. The information we have is not hearsay, or second hand. In the parlance of the turf it is "straight from the feedbox."

George Underwood

We'll tell the world that if the professionals, particularly the boxers and the managers, want to save their skins, want to keep the business of boxing alive, it is time for them to get wise to themselves. It is time for them to realize that the depression which has hit business of all kinds has hit the business of boxing, and if they want to keep the business of boxing alive they will have to consider the business of boxing as well as their own bankbooks.

If boxers and managers don't give promoters and those who have invested their money in arenas and other places where boxing is held, an even break, the time is coming when the bankbooks will show no further deposits received from boxing. The business of boxing will be dead.

The first thing boxers and managers should realize is that the day of the guarantee is over.

A boxer is worth no more, no less, than what he draws at the gate. Yet boxers and managers go merrily on holding up promoters for fabulous sums. Boxers and managers are asking the same guarantees and the same purses they were receiving when boxing was on the crest of the wave, not at the low ebb of now is in.

One boxer we attempted to get to appear on a charity card not only demanded an excessive guarantee but demanded $1000 transportation for coming a distance where transportation charges scarcely would have been a hundred dollars.

Mind you we were not asking boxers to box for charity. For the matches sought, boxers would have been paid and paid well.

ANENT SETUPS

Boxers persist in their favorite pastime of feeding on setups. Many of them positively refuse to meet any opponent capable of giving them a real test, a real fight. In one instance a leading boxer we know of turned down five opponents who would have given him a good contest and drawn a good gate and then asked an outrageous sum to box a setup who he could have named the round in which he would stop him.

Consider the case of Young Stribling. This boxer was offered a guarantee of fifty thousand dollars to box Jack Sharkey in Madison Square Garden, New York, for the Christmas Fund of Mr. Hearst's NEW YORK AMERICAN. He turned it down.

Yet Stribling jumped at the chance of taking on the veteran K. O. Christner in Newark. The match was called off when on the morning of the fight the advance sale was purported to be only two hundred dollars. Now Messrs. Stribling and Christner have come to Boston and are billed to go on here on Friday night.

In his "I've Often Wondered" column in the Daily Mirror is it any wonder Dan Parker queries:

"How come the Stribling-Christner bout (Meyer's injured knee and all) was moved intact to Boston when Newark wouldn't fall for it?"

Commenting upon the calling off of the Stribling-Christner affair in Newark, Eddie Frayne in the NEW YORK AMERICAN wrote:

"It was called off by Promoter Harry Mandell early in the afternoon. Mr. Christner had stepped on a pebble while doing his final roadwork and sprained his knee. Mr. Mandell was much cut up about it. There are reports that the advance sale totalled only $200, which was not enough to meet Mr. Stribling's guarantee.

"The moral is that the American public is now buying its baloney at the delicatessen."

The business of boxing not only is suffering from the slump and tightness of money that has hit business of all kinds, it is being pushed lower by the money hungry managers and boxers.

OTHERS TO BLAME

But the managers and boxers are not the only ones to blame.

Promoters who offer guarantees are just as much at fault as boxers and managers who demand them.

State, municipal and official commissions, who permit guarantees, and uneven matches, are just as much to blame as the boxers, managers and promoters who stage them.

The Iron Hand was never needed in boxing as much as it is now.

If the sport of boxing, the business of boxing, is to continue, then boxing must be saved from itself. The place to start is at the bottom with the avaricious boxers and managers. The ones to start it are those to whom authority over boxing is legally delegated.

Abolish guarantees of all kinds. A boxer is worth what he draws at the gate, no more, no less.

Refuse sanction to setups and pushovers. A boxing contest is not a boxing contest, unless it is between two evenly matched opponents.

Suspend the boxer who asks for, or the promoter who offers a guarantee.

Refuse permits for any "match" wherein one opponent plainly outclasses another.

Unless these and other things are done, boxing is doomed. The handwriting on the wall never was plainer.

LOCAL BOYS WHO WILL PLAY FOR GREEN SATURDAY

ARTHUR CONNLEY

THE INJURY SUFFERED by Stan Yudicky, star Dartmouth end, gives Forrest Branch, Medford boy, a chance to start against Yale. Branch is one of the most versatile players on the squad. Arthur Connley, Swampscott, will also see action on the other wing. Len Clark, Newton, right halfback, who was on the injured list, is expected to be right enough to play in the Bowl.

BOOTH TO PLAY AGAINST GREEN

New Haven, Oct. 29—Definite announcement that Albie Booth will play against Dartmouth Saturday was made at Yale today.

Dr. Leonard Sanford, the team's physician cleared the wording of a statement previously issued and said that the undersized quarter back is in good condition and that he will appear in the Eli lineup against the Hanover Indians.

Booth ran the first team in a two-hour signal drill and showed no effects of the smearing he got in the Army game. He seemed to have lost none of his fire and speed.

One important change was made in the first team backfield. "Dud" Parker, whose kicking against the Cadets was a revelation, replaced Austen and teamed up with Booth. Dunn and Crowley. Parker is a sophomore and was a star on the 1929 freshman team.

Wilbur, another sophomore, is at left tackle again, and seems to have the edge on the veteran Hall for the job. Barres, end, had another day of rest.

BUCKLEY DENIES FIGHT OFFER

Johnny Buckley, manager of Jack Sharkey, stated today that he has not received any offer from an Atlanta promoter for a Sharkey-Stribling bout.

"Damon Runyon, acting for the New York American Christmas Fund, signed Sharkey for a bout with Stribling at the New York Garden on Dec. 8. The purpose of the show was to furnish food for the hungry children of New York.

"Sharkey took the match on a percentage basis. Stribling refused to accept a percentage and also turned down a $50,000 guarantee.

"Sharkey started Stribling running backward when he met the Georgian in a Miami Beach ring a year ago last February. "Pa" boy hasn't stopped running yet.

"If Stribling will consent to box Sharkey, I will agree to let "Pa" act as referee and "Ma" run be the limekeeper. Sharkey will win by a k. o."

Malden Lineman Out With Broken Bone

Malden high's husky lineman Harold "Hal" Randall, is out of the game until Thanksgiving Day, at least, as the result of a broken bone in his hand. X-rays taken at Malden Hospital of the injury obtained in the Manchester high game reveal. Al Markin will take his place in the line.

Ex-Malden Gridman in Cambridge Post

William "Sheep" Jackson, former signal barker at Malden high who later starred in football and baseball at Lincoln University, has been appointed director of physical education of the Cambridge Community Centre. He is taking a course at Boston University School of Social Service.

Flather to Head N. E. Golf Board

The New England Golf Association announces its officers, who were elected at a recent meeting. Oscar M. Flather of New Hampshire is president, Harry D. Pelkham of Massachusetts, vice-president and Raynor M. Gardiner of Massachusetts, secretary.

The advisory committee comprises Malcolm Farmer, Harold Pierce, William F. Garcelon and John A. Gammons.

It was also decided that the 1931 amateur championship would begin the first Monday in August and the course probably would be in the western part of the state.

Hot Off the Gridiron

By the Associated Press.

Hanover, N. H.—Dartmouth had a lot of trouble in stopping Yale plays as interpreted by the scouts yesterday, but that isn't worrying Coach Jack Cannell as much as the possibility of staleness. Cannell believes that is one big reason why the Green never had beaten Yale.

Annapolis, Md.—Bill Ingram, Navy coach, is satisfied the team that beat Princeton is the best combination the Navy squad can produce. Princeton supporters are hoping they don't meet a better one.

New York.—Tony Siano, Fordham's Italian captain, has an extra job in keeping the balance between the Irish and the Poles on his team. One side of the line is composed of Wisniewski, Miskinis and Elcewicz and the other of Conroy, Foley and Tracey. In the backfield Burke and Pivirotto line up directly behind Siano with Murphy and McMahon flanking them.

Philadelphia.—With the tough Kansas team just ahead, Penn doesn't have a "first" team yet, Coach Lud Wray says he is not through shuffling his players, and no one is safe of his position. It depends on who does the best this week with the plays intended for use against the Jayhawkers.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Coach Vic Hanson appears to be worried because the Syracuse line, one of the team's strongest points, will be outweighed by the Brown forwards.

Norwich Coach Rips Up Losing Eleven

Northfield, Vt., Oct. 29—Coach Dewey Graham made six changes in the lineup of his Norwich football team as a result of last Saturday's poor showing against Middlebury.

Cosne went from end to halfback, Delvecchio from halfback to tackle and Fanos from end to center. Three reserves were promoted. Mersheimer to end, Caswell to guard and Bodfish to center.

Saturday. But he still intends to use the same seven men.

West Point, N. Y.—Five Army players may not get into action against North Dakota Saturday. Carlmark, King, Fields, Bowman and Humber, were kept out of yesterday's drill and there was some uncertainty whether they would be ready for the game.

HORNSBY AFTER AL SPOHRER

Chicago, Oct. 29 (AP)—Long-standing disagreements and changes in the Cub baseball family are expected to start tomorrow when Manager Rogers Hornsby returns to establish his winter headquarters. Hornsby has refused to "farm or deny rumors of wholesale changes in the team's personnel, but from tomorrow on announcements of changes are expected to be numerous and shocking to the baseball world.

The status of Capt. Charlie Grimm, regular Cub first baseman for the past six seasons, is one of the big question marks. Rumor has it that Joe Hauser of the St. Louis Cardinals will succeed him.

Another report pictures Catcher "Gabby" Hartnett, It is known that Hornsby thinks well of Al Spohrer, backstop for the Boston Braves, and that he wants him as a Cub. Spohrer, however, is a holdout in such a deal. The Cubs still want Third Baseman Whitney of the Philadelphia Nationals, and are willing to pay considerable cash and part with a player or two for him.

Light, Fast W. and M. Eleven May Trouble Harvard Team

Harvard's varsity team will review what they know of defense against the Warner system in preparing for William and Mary in another scrimmage at Soldiers Field today.

The Virginians are coming to the Stadium with a light four eleven, which is to be a feature of the opposing Army team of two weeks ago.

Once again the Harvard line will be pitted against double wingback formations, lightning splitting lines and a host of forward passes. Coach Bill Reed will be William and Mary's third attempt to wrest a victory from Harvard. [illegible] on the part of the Crimson coaching staff. The team will be the best Indian team at Harvard.

Coach Branch Bocock, former Mississippi mentor, is justly proud of the W. and M. team which will [illegible] against Harvards battered eleven this week. The Southerners have won four victories and lost only two close battles thus far this season. Last week they whipped Washington and Lee, to the tune of 34-0 at Lexington, Va.

William and Mary is captained by Jim Murphy, a local boy who formerly starred for Boston Trade School. Murphy is at present rated as the outstanding tackle in the South.

Harvard, with Bob Ogden, Fred Richards and Charlie Devens out of their starting lineup faces a stiff task in the hope to stop the fast moving Indian aggregation. Ogden's absence from right end leaves Harvard woefully weak against spinning plays and the deceptive hand of football W. and M. employs. With Fred Richards due to stay on crutches until the Michigan game Harvard must find another first string left tackle.

BAUSCH TO PLAY FOR KANSAS

Lawrence, Kan., Oct. 29 (AP)—The University of Kansas Athletic Board today passed favorably upon the eligibility of James Bausch, star football player, whose case [illegible] of the university from the big six athletic conference.

After a 2½ hour session at which the board considered a 45-page typed report of an investigation into charges of subsidization [illegible] caused the big six conference to take action against Kansas the following statement was issued:

"With the evidence as collected and presented today, the board feels that it is not justified in declaring any member of the present football squad ineligible."

Bausch will accompany the Kansas football squad when it leaves today for Philadelphia to play the University of Pennsylvania Saturday.

The conference officials in deciding last week that other Big Six schools would schedule no athletic contests with Kansas after that year did not declare Bausch ineligible.

The action was taken, however, on charges brought by Missouri that Bausch had been recruited from Wichita University and had the amateur status [illegible] by the receipt of a $75 a month salary from a Topeka and Lawrence insurance company as an advance on commissions as a salesman while he was playing [illegible]

Grid Star Dies of Pneumonia

Gardner, Mass., Oct. 29 (AP)—[illegible] Burns, 21, widely known football player, died in Heywood Hospital this morning of pneumonia.

He had been ill a week. Burns was captain of the high school football team in 1923 and later played football at St. John's Prep at Danvers, Clark school in Hadley, N. H., and Norwich University.

Irish Turn Down Cav's Challenge

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 29 (AP)—Notre Dame will not play a post-season football game this fall with Fordham or any other eleven, Coach Knute Rockne said today when informed that Fordham coaches had issued a challenge to both teams finished their current campaigns undefeated.

"Notre Dame is not concerned with so-called national football championships," Rockne said. "We play a full schedule of games and let the matter rest at that. "Anyway, we may be beaten yet."

MEDFORD BOY WILL FACE YALE

By BILL GRIMES

Through the injury of Stan Yudicky, Forrest Branch, former Medford high captain and all scholastic center, will start at right end for Dartmouth against Yale on Saturday.

According to no less authorities than the Big Green coaches, Branch is one of the finest types of football [illegible] ever [illegible] around. He is [illegible] one of the most versatile for in the 1st month he has played, and played well center, guard and end for Dartmouth.

Bill Grimes

Forrie Branch entered Dartmouth a year ago, with a reputation as one of the smartest centers the Suburban League had produced in many years. "Hubbe" Collins, Medford high coach, predicted great things for Branch before the start of last season.

As Eastman, a former Lake Forest Academy captain, was a candidate for center on last year's freshman team, Branch was immediately shifted to guard. He was not even given a real try out, for had he been offered an opportunity to display his ability as a center Eastman would not have made the grade. Branch made good at guard, in spite of the fact that the position was new to him.

Branch Quickly Proves Versatility as Player

At the opening of this season, Branch was tried out at center. There were five candidates for this berth, Capt. Andres, Ping Ferry, Bob Kimball and Bill Burroughs. Branch worked his way through four of his opponents and was the runner up to Capt. Hal, when a shortage of guards developed.

As Ferry, Kimball and Burroughs did not measure up as potential center fast, Coach Norm Crisp decided to convert Branch back into a guard. And, again he made good.

The week of the Boston University game, Branch received notice that he had been shifted to the end squad. In five days he mastered the end assignments and was used against [illegible]. After that game Head Coach Cannell was loud in his praise of Forrie Branch, for the former Medford high star's fine performance.

Since the B. U. game, Branch has smoothed off all the rough edges of end play. He did a wonderful job against Harvard, and Dartmouth is not worrying that Yale will take any liberties with him.

Due to his years of experience in the middle of the line, Branch is exceptionally valuable on the offense. He handled Richards and Kusba like a veteran and did not miss an assignment. Branch is quick to size up plays, as his defensive work against the Crimson clearly demonstrated. He is a tough man to get off his feet even when pulled against a tandem interference. He is very strong, shifty and knows how to use his hands to the best advantage.

Branch Will Improve Green Aerial Attack

Stan Yudicky is a great end. He is highly respected by Yale, for he hit Eli backs harder on his first and only appearance in the Bowl than they enjoyed. Yudicky has a national reputation but in end department Branch is his superior.

Yudicky is near the Crimson records and therefore cannot receive forward passes, but there is nothing wrong with Branch's catching and with the Medford boy in action Dartmouth will be better equipped to take to the air.

In summing up, Forrest Branch is a born football player. He has all the requisites necessary to reach stardom in the gridiron game. He stands five feet eleven and weighs about 165. And, there is no player in the game, who likes the game better than Branch. He is a fitness worker, apparently immune from injury when in use to the fact that he hits and pays harder than most athletes and knows how to protect himself.

Local Directors to Manage Boston Garden Shows

ALBERTANTI GOES BACK TO N.Y.

By JACK CONWAY

The cyclone which swept Frank Bruen out of his job as general manager of the New York Garden has also hit the Boston Garden.

Francis Albertanti, Public Director at the Boston Garden, has announced his resignation.

Jack Conway

"I shall return to New York tomorrow," said Albertanti. "I regret severing my connections with the Boston Garden but I like Boston and was planning to bring my family here. The depression in the fight game has made changes necessary and I'm going back to New York.

"Everybody treated me splendidly in Boston and I regret that conditions made it impossible for me to remain here."

Billy Ames, assistant matchmaker to Alex MacLean, has stepped to bat as boss of the typewriters in the press room. He hammered out a story to the effect that Babe Hunt, Oklahoma heavyweight, has agreed to box for the Garden. He mentioned Napoleon, Jack Dorsey's name so frequently in his maiden publicity effort that you may bet on the tea in China that Hunt and Dorsey are under contract to box at the Boston Garden.

It may be unkind to spoil this news now, but then news is news. So get ready for the Hunt vs. Dorsey announcement.

Boston Directors to Run Local Garden

Maj. P. J. O'Keefe told this writer that the local directors of the Boston Garden have decided to assert themselves.

"The Boston Garden in future will be conducted by the local directors," said O'Keefe. "There are several New York directors on our board, but we do not intend to permit them to dictate our policy.

"Boxing is the only sport that isn't on a paying basis at the Garden. We believe that with proper cards and management that the game can be restored to a firm standing in this city.

"Of course, if we find that we are unable to successfully promote boxing at the Garden, we shall discontinue the sport and devote all our attention to the sports that are making money.

"I am quite confident, however, that with proper local direction, we can show a profit from boxing."

The directors of the Boston Garden have apparently come to the conclusion that the Hub will not patronize shows with fancy ticket prices. The Carnera-Maloney bout, with a $12.50 top, only drew a gate of $48,000 which did not leave much of a profit in view of the $25,000 guarantee to Carnera and the $15,000 guarantee to Maloney.

High priced shows according to an announcement made by the Garden directors, are out for the present at least.

Garden Officials Not to Hold Weekly Shows

John O'Brien, General Manager of the Boston Garden, declared as purely fictitious the stories in the New York papers to the effect that the Boston Garden had decided to abandon boxing. He said:

"We, the Boston Garden, will continue in the boxing field. We have matched Babe Hunt with Napoleon Jack Dorsey for Nov. 1 and are planning a show to follow this one.

"At a recent meeting of Garden directors it was decided not to run boxing shows every week because of the scarcity of talent and the business it brings. It was agreed, however, to continue with boxing and to conduct as many shows as possible.

"Our new policy is for the finding and developing of local talent. We believe Boston fans want to see local boys in action whenever possible. We shall make an effort to have at least one local man in each main event as we believe the fans do not care to see two outside boys clash unless they are men of national ability.

"The Garden will be very much in the boxing field during the indoor season. As soon as we can develop some new local talent, interest in the boxing game in Boston will pick up."

Jack Dempsey will add $2500 to his bankroll when he referees the ten-round bout between Young Stribling and Arthur DeKuh at Atlanta on Nov. 13.

Father Bill Cuddy says there will be at least 36 bouts at the St. Joes tournament at Mechanics Building on Saturday night. There will be contests at 112, 126, 135, 147 and 160 pounds and in the heavyweight division.

SET TO STEM THE GOLDEN AVALANCHE

THE EAGLE LEADER. Johnny Dixon of Norwood, who is expected to be in good shape for the first time since the opening game against Marquette at Fenway Park on Saturday.

EAGLES TO HAVE FULL STRENGTH

Boston College will practically be at full strength for the game against Marquette at Fenway Park on Saturday.

Capt. Johnny Dixon's shoulder is in better condition than at any time since the Catholic U. game when the leaser received the pain[ful] job. Al Morelli is ready for work while Bill Bennett and Emil Romanowski, the two regular tackles who were victims of bruised knees are once again running more firmly.

George Colbert was working out his injured knee by practicing punting.

The main part of the Tuesday practice period was given over to [illegible] a drill in the fundamentals of reserve linemen attempting to stop the plays of the prospective starting eleven. When the regulars retired a second team took up the carry. Harden Coach McKenney took no chances with Dixon, Bennett and Romanowski but Morelli played through the whole skirmish

TIM MARA SUES TUNNEY FOR $405,000

New York, Oct. 29 (AP)—Gene Tunney went to the mat with Tim Mara today in Supreme Court.

Mara is suing the former heavyweight champion and his ex-manager, Billy Gibson, for $405,000 and accumulated interest. He charges Tunney forgot a little agreement whereby Mara was to get 10 per cent of the fighter's earnings and 25 per cent of Tunney's share of the receipts from the Dempsey fight in Philadelphia in September 1926.

Mara, a sports promotor and president of the New York Giants profession football club, claims $20,000 as his share of the $200,000 Tunney got for wresting the heavyweight title from Jack Dempsey.

He also asks $385,000 for his price for exploiting the "battle of the century" which was one of the features of sesqui-centennial celebration in Philadelphia.

Tunney's defense is that Mara's contract called for the fight to be staged in New York, and that by failure to put on the classic here Mara automatically forfeited his claim on the Tunney money bags.

Tunney was not in court and it was reported he might not appear until he is called as a witness.

BACKFIELD ACE. Mike Vodoklys, who has been the only Boston College back able to gain any ground consistently this season. Mike will face the Golden Avalanche from Milwaukee.

The greens are console, such as is used at the Gigantic.

PICK PLESTINA TO WIN BOUT

By RINGSIDE

Marin Plestina has been installed a slight betting favorite for his finish mat bout with Jack Sherry, Ohio champion, which will be staged at the Boston Arena tomorrow night under the direction of Paul Bowser.

Plestina is a veteran campaigner, for is very powerful and is a master of every wrestling hold.

Sherry has been a favorite with Boston fans and will make a strong bid to upset the dope. The Ohio champion makes no secret of the fact he is shooting for a match with Gus Sonnenberg, world's champion. A win over Plestina will be a great boost to Sherry's title drive.

Rosario Impellitier, giant Italian wrestler, will oppose John Grandovich of Russia. Impellitier is the Carnera of the mat game. Standing six feet eight inches tall and weighing 265 pounds, Rosario has been somewhat of a sensation. He licked Jack Rushell in Rio Rosito about and has since tipped over four other opponents.

The giant Italian is only 20 years of age and, with experience expected to develop into one of the stars of the mat game.

Count Zarynoff will return to action when he collides with Louis Loew of France in another bout. Zarynoff will be remembered for his two stirring contests with Bonnebery last season.

Bruins Work Out at Arena

After taking a day off yesterday to work out the kinks which were brought on by the intensive practice session on Monday the Bruins resumed their conditioning exercises at the Garden from 9 to 11 o'clock today. Another workout will be held tomorrow from 8 to 10 o'clock. Capt. Lionel Hitchman will don his uniform in today's workout, making a total of 20 players limbering up. Four of these will be farmed out or sold when the league season starts, in compliance with the player limit of 75.

It was the Bruins' manager who first used the second line in hockey as we know it. He was the other league pilots one better when he introduced the idea of a third line a year ago. Weeks progressive Ross intends to develop a third line this year that will be almost on a par with his other two lines, Jamie paralyzing.

Football Is Body and Brain Builder, Says Coach

MODERN BOYS DEFENDED BY SHERLOCK

Editor's Note: This is the second of a series on school coaches, their views of football and the boys who play, written by Bill Connell, Schoolboy Sports Editor of the Boston Evening American.

By BILL CONNELL

"As a builder of body and brain through exercise and discipline, football has no equal," said Edward F. 'Skip' Sherlock, Hyde Park high school coach, when asked his views by the writer.

"Give me a boy with speed, courage and the head," continued Skip, "and I'll have the makings of a fine football player. Give the lad a few years on a school squad and he will be better for the play and ready to go on to college football if he has the stuff."

Skip Sherlock, veteran of many campaigns of school, college and pro football first as a brilliant player and later as successful mentor, retains all the enthusiasm and flaring spirit of youth.

And he makes these qualities count, for he throws himself into the task of coaching his boys with all the verve and pep which made him a great athlete some seasons back.

"The year doesn't matter," smiled Skip in reply to our query, "but I graduated from Boston English high and went to Brown."

A football and baseball star in high school, Sherlock won fame in these sports in his single year he played at Brown.

Skip did go out for the Harvard [illegible] but never played for the Crimson. A short while after he joined the squad, he received a sniffy worded letter informing him that he was dropped from participation in athletics because of "alleged professionalism."

Sherlock Played Quarterback on Pittsburgh Pro Team

He took his degree from Harvard and then was summoned to Pittsburgh to play pro football.

Boys' Latin school of Baltimore next claimed Skip, as coach. During this time he worked with the Maryland A. C. Then three years at Mercersburg academy and then back to Boston. Back home, Skip coached Rindge Tech and Commerce and six seasons back started as Hyde Park coach.

"Nothing Wrong With Boys of Today," Says Sherlock

"There's nothing the matter with the boys today. They ride more than we did years ago. We smiled at miles and trudged long distances to school, to games and around town. Very likely that kept our legs and wind in superior condition.

It must have done something for Skip, those seasons past. As a player he was as fast as a spinning whippet. He could dicker through a broken field with all the speed and shiftiness of a bat through jutting rafters of a ramshackle barn.

Skip continued:

"The strain of football doesn't harm our boys as do the injuries received. And with the right protection and padding, provided a boy is not let play beyond a certain limit, there isn't much danger.

"It's up to the coach to see that no youngster is let play beyond the stage where his strength fails him and he can't protect himself against harm.

"Sometimes boys are allowed in the battle too long, simply because their substitutes are inexperienced and the coach does not want to risk using an unknown quantity as long as the regular can do anything at all.

"The coaches should know just how much his men can stand and act accordingly. In some few schools where making money is the next object and tough schedules are lined up to draw the crowd, there is danger.

Few Coaches Take Unnecessary Chances

"It is to the credit of the game and its teachers that few coaches, even when a winning team is the premium by which they hold their jobs, are willing to take unnecessary chances with the safety of the boys.

Today the game is good. The old-time contests, with mass interference and little deception, was far too conservative. Any of these old-time good teams could have used the fine plays which are common today.

"For, though I don't say the old-timers were greater than the present crop, they were just as good. There were numbers of fast, shifty backs, and strong, fast linemen, who would make good today.

"I didn't like the present fumble rule at first, but since have decided it is for the good of the game."

VETERAN BOSTON COACH

EDWARD "SKIP" SHERLOCK, Hyde Park high football coach, shown above, is turning out good grid teams each year. Today in the Boston Evening American he gives his views on football and the players. Sherlock is one of the most capable school coaches in the country.

School Notes

Benny Murray, Norwood high football coach, is having a rough road this year, has tenth at Norwood. For nine years Norwood teams had many victories, losing only nine games during that period. Already this fall Norwood has dropped three games.

Capt. Jim Devine has been out with injuries all season but will be ready to start soon. He was the sole letterman left from the 1929 eleven. With him back in the lineup Norwood can make more headway.

Tom O'Donnell, tackle, Art Billingham, end, and Anthony O'Donnell, a halfback, have been playing good football for Norwood. Tony O'Donnell, who is not related to Tom, of the '30 team, is a member of a family famous in Norwood athletic history. Three brothers, Tom, Marty and Bill played for Norwood in past years.

Charley Patrone, end, and Joe O'Brien, a tackle, are captains of Hyde Park high this year. At the election these two were tied in the voting. Skip Sherlock put it up to the boys and they agreed to have two captains for the season.

So now Patrone is captain for one half, and O'Brien leader during the other half. Before the game both boys go to the center of the field to greet the opposing captain making things even all around. It is an unusual condition, but has worked out well.

Somerville high will have to play good football to beat Everett on Saturday in their important Suburban league war at Everett. Denny Gildea has his club moving along again and the team may stage a surprise in its game with Somerville.

After its victory over Salem Medford has high hopes that it will tackle a defeat on Newton when the latter comes to Medford Saturday. Johnny Messina, a green Soph at the start of the season, has developed fast under Hubba Collins and gives Medford the snap it needs.

Rankin back of the Hyde Park eleven, has all the marks of a coming standout. He can block well and he runs effectively, with a smooth sway of the hips which fools tacklers.

Herman Hussey, Tom Whelan's Lynn English star end, is one of the best wingmen in years in school ranks. Big, strong and fast, Hussey combines ability in playing his position with the duty of kicking. He is a splendid punter and place kicker.

Bill Chesterfield, soph backfield candidate at Somerville, should be All Scholastic before he finishes high school, judging by his grid qualities now. He is nicely built and handles himself with the ease of the born backfield star. Under Chuck Dickerman he has a chance to gain all the fine points and with work make a name for himself at Somerville.

Home Town Fans to Honor H. C. Captain

Jamaica Plain residents are planning a Garrity Day in honor of Capt. Henry "Hank" Garrity of the Holy Cross football team.

The home town folks have set Saturday, November 22, as the big day when all will journey to Worcester to see Captain Garrity send his charges against the Loyola College eleven.

The committee in order to assure the success of Garrity Day, will hold a dancing party on Friday evening, October 31, in Carbone Union Hall Worcester 29. Funds received from this dance will be utilized to make Garrity Day a success.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

Your object in making your hands go at a point even with your body line, in the back swing, when impinges the point where they parallel a line running to the flag is to keep your swing in its correct oblique plane, or at the same degree of tilt from upright. The slice and the hook result, more than from any other cause, from changing this plane. It can be understood that if you merely swing your left arm straight back your hand will go to a point directly off your left shoulder. Then if it goes any greater distance its natural direction will be upward. So it is exactly with your golf club the idea being always to attain the perfectly natural action. Keep this left arm action in mind as you swing [illegible] ing the club. If you can thus make your [illegible] work too can quickly [illegible] your golf shots this way. Usually it is the club in your hands plus the instinct to hit, that causes the trouble. Be more natural

Seven N. E. Colleges Enter Harvard Cross Country Run

Seven New England colleges have accepted Harvard's invitation to compete in the Harvard open intercollegiate cross-country run at Cambridge, Friday.

The colleges are Boston College, Holy Cross, Boston University, Amherst, Springfield, Mass. Aggie and Clark University.

Harvard's team, numbering about 20 runners, will be without a single varsity entrant. The reason for this is that the Harvard varsity harrier team is racing Yale at the same time.

Harvard is not competing on a team basis, but running merely for the experience gained.

A year ago Springfield won the intercollegiate race and thereby became defenders of the trophy presented by Dennie F. O'Connell, captain of the Harvard cross-country team in 1920. Northeastern, who have not entered a team this year were second.

Entries from the various colleges are unlimited. Springfield heads the list with 32 runners, Boston College has 18, B. U., Mass. Aggie and Holy Cross have 10 each, while Amherst is sending only 7 runners to the meet.

In addition to the O'Connell trophy, 10 medals will be awarded to the first 10 men finishing the race. The course will be the regular Harvard 4½-mile affair, starting at Lars Anderson bridge and finishing at the same point after covering 4½ miles through Watertown.

CARNERA SUED BY JOURNEE

Paris, Oct. 29 (INS)—How much is the discovery of Primo Carnera worth?

"Two million francs," says Paul Journee, who claims to be the Columbus in this case.

In other words Journee now adds his name to the board of directors of Carnera & Co., claiming that he has a signed contract with Mr. Mountain for thirty-five per cent of his earnings for fifteen years.

"I worked two years teaching this guy how to box," states Journee. "Then he signed up with me sharing thirty five per-cent of his winnings."

Journee then teamed up with Leon See, he says, agreeing to split the 35 per cent 50-50 with See.

Yale News Wants to Forget 'Tumult' of Army Game

New Haven, Ct., Oct. 29 (AP)—The Yale Daily News, undergraduate publication, in an editorial today expressed regret at "all the tumult" created by Saturday's Yale-Army football game, and said "that as far as Yale is concerned incidents and suspicions are forgotten and the matter is closed.

"As a result of Saturday's game," the News said, "Yale is being featured in the press upon three counts. First, though accepting the decision as given, she believes herself to have been tied by an illegal touchdown. Second, she believes, or some of her spokesmen believe, that Booth was 'put on the spot.' Third, she made herself conspicuous in the above belief by booing the Army.

"The lamentable thing about the whole situation is that now, whatever we may have felt in the heat of unconsidered actions, most of us wish that all the tumult had never been raised. We have cast aspersions upon a long-honored opponent and laid ourselves open to the charge of bad behavior."

Jumbos Prepare for Wildcats

Coach Manley is working his men up to a fighting pitch for the game with the New Hampshire Wildcats on Saturday. New Hampshire always sends a fighting team against the Medford college, and Manley realizes that his team can win only by meeting that fighting spirit with one better. Tufts lost only to New Hampshire last year and this Saturday will be fighting for revenge.

The backfield will be drilled long and hard this afternoon in running and passing plays, and the defense against forwards will also be perfected.

OLD GOLD WINS.. with Broadway's Midnight Golfers

By ROBERT RIPLEY, Creator of Believe It or Not

"In the past 3 years, I have served 'Believe It or Not' facts to more than 200 million people.

"And I've never printed a fact that I could not prove. If there was the slightest doubt about any of them . . . it went in the waste basket.

"When I accepted OLD GOLD'S challenge to make a series of cigarette taste-tests, they agreed in advance to publish results . . . win, lose or draw.

"Here are the results of my latest test. 237 Midnight Golfers on the course back of the Roxy Theatre in New York tested the 4 leading brands of cigarettes . . . OLD GOLD included . . . with brand names concealed. Each smoker picked the cigarette he or she liked best. Then . . . and not until then . . . off came the masks that concealed brand names.

"And OLD GOLD won hands down . . . fair and square as a die. As everybody knows, I prove my facts. So look below and you'll see an actual photograph of the scoreboard. Believe it or not, that was the final score . . . OLD GOLD 76% ahead of its nearest rival!"

Winter and Summer Bathing Affect Your Beauty Differently

Skin Needs Care to Be Kept Soft

By MISS HUDDLESTON.

YES, THERE is a difference between winter and summer bathing. Present day studies, in themselves are the ultimate in comfort, but they haven't the protective merits of bygone underguments. And this makes a great deal of difference in the texture of the skin because it leaves it more exposed to the cold. Therefore, we must bear this in mind during the late fall and winter months if we are to keep the texture of the skin soft and smooth.

Josephine Huddleston

That is the main reason why I distinguish between winter and summer bathing. Hot baths taken just before going out into the open remove the slight protective coating of natural oil from the skin, leaving it in a highly susceptible state for chapping. All of which makes me favor that hour, just before retiring, as the best time for the cleansing bath. However, if you do not plan to go out for an hour or so after bathing that allows ample time for the protective oils to cover the skin again.

During the winter months one olive bath or rub should be taken each week to counteract the drying effect cold weather has upon the skin. The olive rub should follow a cleansing bath of warm. After drying the skin thoroughly just massage the oil all over the body. Even when used liberally the oil penetrates almost immediately, leaving the skin soft and well nourished. At other times I think the body should be given a light application of skin lotion, such as is used for the hands, immediately after it has been dried. Those lotions which are composed of generous amounts of honey and almond are perfect for this.

The cleansing tub or bath should be the one where the bath brush is used instead of a wash cloth. Its use not only stimulates circulation but frees the pores from all impurities and helps to remove the filmy particles of dead skin which are constantly being thrown off as the new skin develops. It's amazing how quickly dry pimples disappear after the daily use of the bath brush.

Those of you who aren't accustomed to them will think they are a bit harsh at first, but after a few days you'll become used to it and then you won't feel as though your skin really is clean unless you use the brush.

Rinsing the body with clear water is very important. A small hose can be attached to the tap and used to spray the clean water over the skin.

What's in Fashion?

Forecasts Come True

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 —Five weeks ago today we predicted what, in our opinion, would be the leading Fall fashions.

Now let's see what happened. How many of these forecasts came true.

This is what we forecast about coats. We said that "the coat with the wide wrap-around would be the most-in-fashion coat for Fall and Winter." It certainly proved true so far this Fall, hasn't it?

But we went even further and said "the widely-wrapped coat with the shorter shawl collar and buckled belt would be one of the most worn."

Actual figures prove that it is—whether it's in a sports tweed or a formal woolen. And we again predict it will continue a favorite all through the Winter.

The Tunic Dress

Then we told you to "watch for the tunic dress." We said "the tunic would be worn in shrunk, medium and long versions, with the long tunic the most popular."

If you've tried to count tunic dresses, as we've counted them . . . in restaurants, offices, theatres, limousines, and street cars and many other places . . . you know that forecast was right.

You've seen scores of these tunic dresses . . . similar to the one sketched . . . and you'll continue to see them.

Hats with Flared Brims

"The hat with the brim that flares softly away from the face will be an outstanding hat this season." That's what we predicted five weeks ago.

Five fashion weeks have proved we were right. That novelty is finding this one of the most becoming hats they've ever worn. One of its many, many versions is sketched.

Darker Stockings

Have you noticed how much darker stockings have grown in the last five weeks"

We predicted they would . . . because darker stockings blend more harmoniously with the darker colors of Fall costumes. These darker beiges and slightly brownish taupes will continue all Winter—in our opinion.

Darker Gloves

Gloves, too, have been growing darker—just as we forecast they would.

Darker beiges and taupes that echo the stocking color are seen on all fashionable hands, in the daytime. And most often they're four-or-six-button lengths.

Sheer Woo' Dresses

Just at the beginning of Fall, we predicted "greater popularity than ever for the light, almost-sheer woolens in tailored dresses."

And have you ever before seen as many wool crepe, wool georgette, feather-weight tweed and jersey dresses as you've been seeing these past five weeks? Their comfort and practicality appeal to women of all ages.

Men's 2-Button Suits

What's the most popular suit for men. It's the one with the two-button, notched lapel coat, which we predicted.

It has a slightly traced waistline and natural shoulders. And you see it most often in a subdued, rich gray or brown stripe. Just as we said you would!

Snap Brim Felts

And as for men's hats—we picked the snap brim, raw edge felt for the winning number.

This is the hat you see most . . . and in the medium or light gray we said would be most fashionable.

Here's a further prediction:

Keep watch of all these fashions as winter approaches. They're going to keep on being the outstanding ones for the fashion months ahead. These are sound, logical fashions as all good fashions are.

The fashionable tunic dress and flare-away brimmed hat.

Few Escape the Penalty of Eating Wrong Things

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

HOW MANY persons there are who are afflicted with some form of digestive disorder? Their number is legion.

Dr. Copeland

Acute or chronic gastritis is a very disagreeable condition. It points to some serious errors of diet, to ingested bacterial or mineral poison, or to the toxin of some infectious disease.

Acute gastritis begins suddenly and unexpectedly with fullness and discomfort in the stomach. It is really an acute inflammation of the mucous membrane lining of the stomach. Thick mucus covers this membrane and interferes with the normal action of the digestive juices. The material makes an ideal breeding-place for the germs of fermentation.

The walls of the stomach will absorb poisons as quickly as they will nourishing food. Fermentation follows, and with this condition there is a great accumulation of gas, which causes pain and swelling.

The patient is troubled with headache, fever, thirst, and chilliness. There may be nausea and vomiting or attempts to vomit. Very often a sour or bitter fluid is ejected. There are palpitation of the heart, cold sweats and prostration. There may be a jaundiced condition and, in bad cases, the vomited material is a mixture of blood, mucus and bile. The tongue is coated and there are fever sores on the lips. The skin is apt to itch intolerably.

Depending upon the physical condition of the patient, and the severity of the attack, the symptoms may last for a day and a night. In other cases they continue for several days.

Gastritis should not be neglected, for it may become chronic. Every case of chronic gastritis is difficult to overcome.

The causes of this disease are many. First of all, it may come from a general impoverished condition, due to unsuitable food. It may result from eating stale or bad food. It may be due to impairment of the digestive apparatus from other causes, such as overeating and over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors. On the other hand, it may be secondary to a disease of the heart, lungs or kidneys, or to fever.

If the source of the trouble is wrong diet or some bacterial or mineral poisoning of the system, there should be a thorough washing of the stomach. A large quantity of water should be used, with a little teaspoonful of soda. This will remove food remnants and mucus. If the attack is mild, recovery should be quick.

When the stomach has been thoroughly emptied, the colon should receive irrigation. It is well to take a dose of castor oil or some saline solution for further cleaning out of the bowels.

During the attack even the drinking water should be restricted. The thirst may be appeased by taking cracked ice or small amounts of hot water. The patient should be kept warm in bed.

Feeding may be resumed after a day or two and a soft, bland, non-irritating diet be given for a week or ten days. Milk, milk toast, dry toast, soft-boiled or poached eggs, cereals with cream, broths, fruit juices, baked apple, rice or tapioca pudding, cup custard and tender meat may be given. All coarse foods should be omitted in the diet for a few weeks.

The stomach recuperates quickly when given a rest, so that it is best not to take food for 24 to 48 hours. If no food is given, with such a period of rest, and the original cause of the attack removed, the stomach condition disappears quickly.

Children Should Not Go Up in Airships

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

THE MOTHER of an eight-year-old daughter made the statement recently in the presence of the child's father and myself: "I think when I go home next month I'll take Eleanor to Kansas! I'll take Eleanor and fly there."

The father's face was a study. First it got red, then purple and he opened his mouth in a speechless rage. "Do you want to get rid of her—is that the idea?" he demanded finally. "You can take the car and drive out if you want to, or go by train, but you'll never take that child on an air transport!"

"It finally worked out that the mother and child drove to Kansas and missed a delightful, clean, less tiring, less risky trip via the air.

Constance Cameron

Before I go any further I want to make it clear that I do NOT advise taking small children up in airplanes. It might work out all right, but it might not—and through no fault of flying, but more probably from the effect of altitude and pressure introduced by a none-too-confident mother.

But this child was eight years old. She had seen planes; she knew what they were and she wanted to ride in one. That part was all set. But that wasn't what worried the father. To him it was nothing more or less than a premeditated murder of their offspring.

I had no information to offer at the time save that I had flown twelve hundred miles in a cabin plane and loved it; that at Camaguey, Cuba, we took on two boys of approximately 10 and 12 years of age, and they, too, had a glorious time leaving with apparent regret when we arrived at Havana.

But the father persisted in his hard and fast idea that flying wasn't safe. Well, is anything safe? The child may slip in the bathtub and break an arm, she may be hit by a careless motor car driver, she may fall off the back fence and break her neck—I could go on indefinitely. But, no, anything was safer than flying.

Some figures which I discovered recently might interest that father. They are carried in a current issue of a magazine articles by Gove Hambidge under the heading "Safe As Flying." Mr. Hambridge offers these statistics. "There were 31 passengers killed in scheduled transport operations in 1929." And further on "the automobile killed 31,000 people last year."

But as to taking your child, who is over seven years of under, if he evinces a desire to go, for a trip in a cabin plane operating on a scheduled transport line, I see less risk than bundling him into the back seat of the family car amid suitcases and thermos bottles for a trip to anywhere.

Proper Way for Maid to Act

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—When a maid answers the door and admits the caller, does she ask for a card?

2—Does the maid return with her mistress to the caller and help her remove her wraps?

3 Does she bring the wraps when the guest is leaving?

4—As each service is taken from the table, is the dinner plate put in its place, or is the table bare after the service plates are removed? E. B.

1—No. If the visitor does not give her or her name and the maid is not familiar with the name, she may ask for it, so that she can announce the name to her mistress. The visitor may either give the name to the maid or give her a card.

2 In a home where there is very formal service, this is done. But usually it is not done. If there is a party being given, and there is a group of people arriving, she would wait to assist with the wraps.

3—Again, with formal service, the mistress may ring for the maid to help with the wraps as the guest is leaving, but such service inclined to be informal.

4—In correct service the place before a guest is not without a plate until after the salad plate has been removed. Then —before the dessert—everything that is not a table decoration and that is not to be used with the dessert course is removed.

Referring to the Children's Uncle

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—Do you consider it improper for my children to address their uncle, who is a doctor, as "Uncle"?

2—Should his sisters address him as "Doctor"? A. A. B.

1—No, this is the name by which correctly they would address him, that is "Uncle" with the first name added: "Uncle John."

2 No. They would naturally address him by his first name.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.

The Rhyming Optimist

Each Man's Part

If each man did his part to make
Earth birm with gladness,
Adventuring gayly wherever
He led,
If each brought to the days just a touch of springs madness,
Just a trace of glamour that
April can shed.
Then always Earth would blossom and brighten like summer
And song would be sweet on the winds of the world.
A welcome would wait for the timid newcomer
Where the banners of friendship were always unfurled.

There will be more of beauty where all men are faring.
More of joy would be given to the world's common way.
If love were a thing for each lonely heart's sharing.
If truth lent bright glimpses of heaven to the days.
If each man did his part, then would rapture go winging
From ocean to ocean, equator to pole,
And the measures of joy would be endlessly singing
Their message triumphant as every man's soul.

Best to Look Like Yourself and Be Yourself

By WINIFRED BLACK

WELL FOR goodness sake, she's been writing to all the others, too, and I thought I was the only one, and I wanted to go away somewhere, in a nice dark corner, and cry about it.

Winifred Black

She wrote to Leola Allard, too. She told Leola she ought to go and have her hair dressed in some decent style, and get an up-to-date picture taken—if she dared.

Why, the very idea of going my way to Leola, and she one of the best-dressed and just loveliest women I know—and I know quite a few.

Leola had a French mother and she's inherited enough French "savy" to wear her hair the way she wants to wear it, and not the way little Mame Jones 'round at the manicure shop thinks she ought to wear it.

What on earth is the matter with these queer little girls anyhow? They never seem to think that a woman like Leola Allard or any other woman who knows enough to get a decent shingle by using what little wit she has instead of her hands or her feet probably is well enough off after her daily stunt is done to dress the way she wants to and wear her hair long, short, medium, straight, curly or permanent wave to suit her own sweet self.

And does it ever occur to these young persons that there is such a thing as looking like yourself and being yourself and getting on rather decently in the world by just being yourself?

And another thing, Little Lady, did you ever think, poor child, that there is something in the world of some importance besides the way you dress, and the style in which you arrange your hair?

It is sometimes a little irritating to have a person assume the pose of the "superior sex." Especially when you know a good many of the dear things and have seen quite a few of them make large and glorious messes of themselves quite as if they were not superior at all.

But I doubt that you could find in this whole round world a young fellow of twenty or twenty-five who would object to a fairly successful man of thirty-five and upwards, and tell him that he ought to comb his hair differently in order to make a real hit with the young men in his office, or the young girls either—for that matter.

Fancy Mr. Harold Frederick writing to P. O. Melntyre or E. C. Foster and telling either, that he can never really make a success of his work unless he brushes his hair back from his low forehead, and puts something on it to make it glitter like the windshield of a horse-drawn motor car?

Good for you, Leola. I'm glad you had the spirit and the humor and the good sense to tell the girl these critical young persons, who couldn't earn one-fifth of your salary to save her life, in her amusing little place.

They live in such a queer little world, don't they?

I know one of them who came over on the Berengaria with Madame Curie right after the discovery of radium, and all the Young Person could tell me about the most distinguished woman in the world was that she had large feet, and that her hair was "too terrible for words!"

I know one who had seen Abraham Lincoln face to face only as a child, but remembered about him was that he had a wart on his nose.

Now of course, neither feminine nor male newspaper people would dream of pretending in be mentioned in even the same breath as Mme. Curie or Lincoln

But it is rather amusing to see someone rise and give the "wart observers" a gentle slap on the wrist.

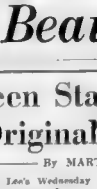
Screen Star Gives Us Original Recipes

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast Over Station WHDH

THE FOLLOWING recipes are contributed to the Martha Lee Department by Jean Harlow, star of Hell's Angels, screen epic of the air now in its final week at the Tremont:

"More ornamental than useful!" That's what the movieland picture public likes to think of its cinema stars. I feel compelled to dispute this assertion.



Martha Lee

Our adoring fans have wrapped us in. Contrary to popular belief we don't all spend our money on diamonds, crepe de chine shoes, foreign cars and Park Avenue flats. I for one actually prefer to do my own cooking, when not making a picture. Your editor has asked me to contribute a few of my own original recipes. Here's one for hot rolls that I predict will go over big with the family.

1 tsp. salt
1 tbsp. sugar
1 cake compressed yeast dissolved in ½ cup warm water
1 half cup lard and butter mixed

"Mix all together in order given, add just enough flour to make soft dough for rolling. Roll thin, cut in small biscuits. Use plenty of butter in baking pans. Brush each biscuit with melted butter, place sandwich fashion, one biscuit on top of the other (two layers). Let them rise two hours. Bake in hot oven about 20 minutes.

"We stars could fire our cooks and life would still flow along like a song, without having to resort to those good old standbyes, hot cakes and baked beans! Speaking of bread, that reminds me! Try this on the family, and watch their reaction:

2 cups white flour
2 cups graham flour
1 tsp. salt
2 tsp. baking powder
¼ cup sugar
½ cup molasses
2 cups sour milk
1 cup nut meats
1 cup raisins

"Mix and sift the dry ingredients, add molasses, milk, raisins and nuts. Pour into well greased bread pan and bake for one and one-half hours in a slow oven. Time in combining, 20 minutes; time in cooking, one and one-half hours. Temperature, 200 to 250 deg. F."

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

She Holds Off New Suitor

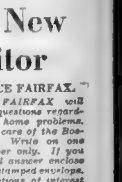
By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding heart and home problems. Address her in care of the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily column.

Miss Fairfax broadcasts over Station WLEX every evening except Saturday and Sunday at 6:35 p. m.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX,

Two months ago, I met a lady and have been out with her quite often since. I understood at the time of our meeting that she was a widow, but she has since told me she had a husband who mysteriously disappeared over a year ago. She says she doesn't wish to encourage any one, and that we had better quit and I had better forget her. It seemed hard for her to tell me that and I believe she cares for me somewhat. She says she cares for no one else. I am deeply grieved. I admire her more than any one else. What shall I do?



Beatrice Fairfax.

GEORGE.

Dear George: I am afraid when the lady says she doesn't wish to encourage any one, that as last any other alternative but to accept her terms. In the case of a disappearing husband, in many—if not all—of the States, if my memory serves me, the law demands seven years' absence before deciding that the man is officially dead, and his wife is at liberty to marry. I do not know the ruling of your State in cases of disappearance which I suppose comes under the head of desertion. Perhaps she will not shut the door absolutely on your friendship—surely she doesn't have to deny herself all association because she was deserted.

Aren't Men Funny?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I am to be married very soon, and as neither of us has any cash, I never dreamed of such fol-de-rols as a wedding and and white dress. I expected to pack out something sensible that would do as my best this winter, and let it go at that.

But my prospective husband didn't like the idea at all. Aren't men funny? He said he wanted me to be married as his mother was married, in white and with a veil. I told him it was foolish to spend that amount of money on an outfit I'd wear only once, but he was absolutely set and it came near being our first serious disagreement. I suppose I'd better give in as I am really very much in love.

KATIE V.

Dear Katie: I believe if it were anything else than your wedding dress, I'd advise you to do not. But, my dear, men are much more sentimental than we are, and your husband-to-be wants you to observe the old traditions as he has always thought of a bride in white. I think the other way round, the girl wants the costly white bridal array and somehow points out how extravagant such display is. The best of luck to you.

Which? Chaos or Industrial Co-ordination

If Business Leaders Shirk Politicians Certain to Take Action

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Oct. 29—Last November the writer said here

"America needs, as this column has repeatedly pointed out, an Institute of Industrial Co-ordination, or some such organization.

"A permanent association, under proper direction, could do much to help iron out peaks and valleys of unemployment, to discourage cruel dropping of elderly workmen, to develop sensible old age pension or other plans for caring for employes no longer able to earn a livelihood, to foster co-operation beneficial to all, to discourage unjustifiable destructive competition and to effect other purposes calculated to stabilize industry and employment.

"Unless certain evils of our present industrial system are remedied or at least modified by Industrialists themselves, the starkly plain handwriting on the wall is that politicians will be and by seek to win acclaim by bringing forward drastic legislation

"The alternative confronting industry is not action or inaction, but action by them or by legislators.

B. C. Forbes

The United States Chamber of Commerce Committee, headed by Julius H Barnes, appointed as a result of the Hoover conference brought on by the panic, has proved a fizzle. All that the committee has done, so far as the public knows, is to compile reports on conditions in different industries. What was needed was not more words, words, words. What was and is needed is action, constructive action, concerted action, statesmanlike action

Instead, the U S Chamber Committee apparently has resolved merely into one more reporting agency, telling us of things that are in this industry and the next with a few words of comment concerning conditions in other directions

President Hoover's second attempt promises to effect something tangible in the line of constructive work the many and widespread emergencies caused by unemployment. Col Arthur Woods is an extremely able organizer of relief; Governor Eugene Meyer of the Federal Reserve Board has had ripe experience in coping with acute depression; governors and mayors and brainy private citizens have at last been induced to face the stern realities.

Neither the federal government nor state governments should hesitate to take whatever measures may be deemed necessary to wage war successfully against the hardships of unemployment. We think nothing of spending billions for armies and for navies and for war, why refuse to spend a few millions for this more humane form of war?

Industry has a responsibility extending far beyond the enlarged excess of this winter. But it has no machinery whatsoever for meeting that responsibility.

The events of the last 12 months have emphasized with terrible force the need for some such organization as the Institute of Industrial Co-ordination which was advocated here long before the boom burst. It was easy to foresee that the wilder the inflation became, the more disastrous would be the reaction. Industry was implored to get together with a view to studying how best to deal with that inevitable reaction. "In time of peace prepare for war" was one exhortation.

But only a handful of business men had vision enough, courage enough, energy enough to grasp the realities, to recognize what loomed ahead. So little or nothing was done.

How long will America's foremost men of affairs shut their eyes to this inescapable fact? Either accept responsibility for curing the defects of our economic system, or the politicians will tackle the problem, including the problem of caring for the unemployed, probably with disastrous consequences.

* * *

Which shall it be, co-ordination by industry, or chaos?

Jones & Laughlin Report Is Issued

Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. reports for nine months ended Sept. 30 net income of $8,809,533 after depreciation, depletion, interest and federal taxes, equal after dividend requirements on the 7 per cent preferred, to $9.93 a share on the 676,320 shares of common, against $16,966,913, or $24.14 a share, in the first nine months of 1929.

September net income was $1,859,637 equal to $1.43 a common share, against $2,462,857, or $4.12 a share, in the preceding quarter and $5,680,226 or $8.09 a share in the third quarter of 1929.

AMERICAN ICE EARNINGS AT RECORD PEAK

By FRANK H. MELOON

President Charles C. Small of the American Ice Co., Maine-born leader, tells me he believes his company is one of those entitled to class themselves as a depression-proof, an adjective of which we have heard much in recent years. It remained for a depression to appear before some adjusted theories could be given a definite test.

* * *

President Small attributes "Announcing record earnings for September and for the first nine months of its fiscal year, American Ice Company and subsidiaries, among them the Boston Ice Company, has moved definitely ahead in select group of depression-proof industrials. The company operates in Rochester, New York, Newark, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and other cities along the Atlantic seaboard."

Charles C. Small

According to President Small, the company's net for September after interest but before Federal taxes and depreciation was $932,346, which compares with $769,882 in September last year, or a gain of 17.4 per cent. For the first nine months, a period somewhat like before federal taxes and depreciation was $5,020,904 compared with $4,-[illegible] for the period last year, an all-time record for the company.

* * *

It has been repeatedly pointed out in this column that talk about the artificial refrigerator ruining the ice men should be taken with a grain of salt.

* * *

As a matter of fact artificial refrigeration has been a valued ally in building up steadily rising profits for the major ice companies. In practically every case that [illegible] per cent of the ice sold is artificially produced with numerous advantages to consumer, rule ice customer over natural ice. A few years ago abandoned "ice farms" dotted the states affords an interesting spectacle. Ice is the greatest crop produced in Boston today.

A news item states:

"Civil Service Commissioner Goodwin states that after a conference with the Governor, the commission has voted unanimously for a new rule which provides that in certifying laborers for temporary employment, the commission should give preference to those on the list with persons dependent on them for support. If the new rule meets with the approval of the Governor's Council, it cannot go into effect before Jan 5."

* * *

It is obvious that, if private business and industry fail to provide adequately for the civil service machinery, the unemployment problem would be solved between now and Jan 5, the date mentioned, by starvation or worse.

Amos 'n' Andy have at last become market factors. Strength in Radio-Keith was influenced by reports of revenue expected from the forthcoming picture of the two radio tattoed heroes.

The real significance of the Eastman announcements is: By a hypothesis that the line succeeded in making money for September and has made a good showing, general conditions considered, for the nine months so far reported. Eastern reports for September net income after charges of $21,771 compared with $3,[illegible] in September a year ago. For the nine months to Sept 30, net totaled $400,013, against $716,-[illegible] 216 a year ago for the same period. There are other fractions actually [illegible] ok

Shattuck's Report for Quarter Given

Frank G Shattuck Co. reports for quarter ended Sept 30 consolidated net profit of $368,491 after depreciation, federal taxes, etc., equal to 74 cents a share on the 1,720,000 shares, against $657,480, or 50 cents a share, in the third quarter of 1929. Compared on the above basis.

For the nine months consolidated net profits was $1,730,469, equal to $1.34 a share, against $2,128,814, or $1.65 a share, in the first nine months of 1929.

Cotton Lower in New York Market

Omits Dividend

Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Co has omitting quarterly dividend of 25 cents due at this time in order to conserve cash resources until more favorable conditions exist in the glass industry.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Failure of the Steel directors to vote an extra dividend probably will prove disheartening principally because of the encouraging remarks recently uttered by its chief executives. Suspicion naturally arises whether their inner thoughts are as optimistic as their public remarks as their public remarks indicated. It is an open question whether sentiment will be severely affected by omission of the extra, although it was hardly suggested that perhaps a surprise may still be in store through declaration of a "Christmas extra."

Steel's Earnings Meet Expectations

Earnings of $2.06 per common share for the September quarter, making $8.44 for the nine months, were fully as expectations for U. S. Steel. The September period's net, however, with due allowance for the 27 cents per share furnished by the tax refund credited to that quarter, actually equalled $1.79 a share, or 7 cents above the period's common dividend requirement

* * *

For the nine months tax refunds accounted for 83 cents per share. In the September quarter and nine months of 1929, net per share was $3.19 and $15.94, respectively, on present capital basis.

General Motors Off Fractionally

Slight setback yesterday in General Motors probably reflected renewed efforts by bears to unsettle the stock in anticipation of the third quarter statement.

Nash Motors Cash Resources

Analysis of Nash Motors discloses cash and security holdings at the end of August of $43,395,-[illegible], while in the four years 1926-1929 the company's net profits were $51,-[illegible]17. Market valuation of Nash is approximately $40,000,000 at current level of the stock

Plan to Revive Wheat Speculation

Plans to bring about a revival of speculation in wheat through a revision of governmental restrictions on large scale speculative operations are being discussed by influential members of the grain trade in Washington. It is learned that several leading wheat brokers have had informal conferences with the government officials on the subject and that a definite proposal will be submitted to the Grain Futures Administration shortly for the purpose of abrogating the present limitation on speculative wheat dealings. The plan is to exempt rule speculators who have commitments of 500,000 bushels or more are forced to change the nature of their activities. This rule, which was originally designed to curb war measures, actually tends to restrict important speculative undertakings in the wheat market.

In wheat circles it is felt that a revision of the present rule, which necessitates the distribution of important wheat transactions, would do much to revive speculation in the grain. That it is hoped, would tend to bring about some improvement in the commodity situation.

Utilities Resist "Bear Selling"

Efforts of professional interests to bring about renewed liquidation in the utility shares were successfully repulsed by sponsors of the various utility issues. As pointed out here several days ago, the public utility stocks are in a better position to resist bear operations, due to the drastic deflation that already has taken place in this group. At the same time a number of the leading utility stocks at last week's declines are at levels that represented a closer ratio to earnings price than any at which the utilities were sold in recent years.

Sponsors of utility stocks, however, are not considering any aggressive operations at the moment. On the contrary, they are more concerned with maintaining a stable market for leading utilities than with any aggressive bullish operations at the present time

Continental Can Net Shows Little Change

Earnings of Continental Can thus far are making a satisfactory showing and interests close to the company indicate that net income for 1930 will approximate that of 1929. Net income during that year amounted to $5.02 a share. Thus far in the current year operations have been well maintained and sales for the first nine months of the year are slightly over those reported in the same period a year ago.

The manner in which earnings of Continental Can have been maintained are rather surprising in view of the reports current during the summer months that operation of plants were being reduced by the prolonged spell of hot, dry weather. Effects of the summer's drought undoubtedly were less severe than had been anticipated at the time.

Both Sides Want Distress Action

The hopes for more distress selling by the bull. The bull for more distress buying by the bear.

Bernet Points to Faith of C. & O.

President Bernet of the Chesapeake & Ohio states:

"Chesapeake's new locomotives and cars are beginning to arrive They represent a tremendous investment, which must be justified by better service and more economical operation. The millions in new equipment put into service at this time represent faith in the business future. Its manufacture provided employment for thousands who otherwise might have been idle. It is tangible proof that we believe there is going to be business for it to handle."

Bedford Leaders in Good Earnings

Corn Products earned net of $[illegible] 170,000 in nine months, against $10,-960,000 a year before, a very good showing

Penick & Ford, engaged in a similar business, earned profit of $1,-404,000 in nine months, against $1,-408,000 in corresponding period last year. It declared an extra of 50 cents, and will recall the remaining outstanding preferred. All of which is pleasing to shareholders.

E. T. Bedford is president of Corn Products Refining Co and F. T. Bedford of Penick & Ford. The latter received his early business training from his uncle, E. T. Bedford, who took over the management of Corn Product's 29 years or so ago when on the verge of bankruptcy. E. T. Bedford was then a member of the big five of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. The late E. C. Converse once referred to the senior Bedford as the world's most capable business executive

Many lines that are in the dumps, or have been unable to leave the rut of depression since the close of the war, might prosper under the "Bedford" trade mark and management.

Short Selling Is by Small Traders

It is claimed that the big professionals are doing little on the selling side, at least not so much as when the market was having some very distressing days. A member of one firm says most of the short selling now is by small traders. Monday out of transactions of 10,000 shares by the firm, 8000 were sold short by customers in amounts ranging from 200 to 300 shares.

Getting Immune to Bad News Now

"Better sell your securities," advised a bear to a bull friend. "I bear we are to get some bad news on steel and copper."

"That doesn't interest me," replied the bull. "I'm immune to bad news now. I have been so up on it for several months, and I know where the bad news doesn't disturb me. I expect to hear bad news every day I come down to the street, and the expected always disturbs one's mind less than the unexpected."

America Is Not 50 P. C. Country

Many of the largest lines are now on a 50 per cent basis, turning out about half what they are able to produce. In past depressions, conditions have been much worse with the steel industry at times down to 30 per cent of capacity. But it doesn't remain at 30 per cent or even 50 per cent very long It didn't remain there long previously, because the United States is not a 50 per cent country

PRICES MIXED, TRADING DULL IN BOSTON

Prices were mixed in dull trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. Gains ranged from fractions to 3 points or more, while recessions were confined within a 2-point range.

Bigelow Sanford advanced 3 points and Crown Cork International was over a point higher. Point gains were shown by Boston & Albany, Mergenthaler Linotype Group and Eastern Gas & Fuel prior preferred.

Atchison Steel and Westinghouse followed the "Big Board" trend, selling 1 to 3 points lower. Boston & Maine prior preferred dipped 1½ to 107.

City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan rejected the one bid submitted by Shawmut Corp. for part of the $8,400,000 3½ per cent registered serial bonds dated November 1, 1930, and maturing 1931 to 1960

Crown Cork International Corp reports for six months ended June 30 net profit of $293,981 after depreciation federal taxes minority interest and after provision for Spanish and Italian fluctuation amounting to $53,171.

This is equal, after dividend requirements on the 259,400 shares of $1 cumulative Class A stock, to 12 cents a share on the 200,000 shares of Class B stock, against $231,316 or 85 cents a share on Class B stock, computed on the same share basis in the first half of 1929.

Approximately $1,000,000 4 per cent Canadian Pacific non-cumulative preference stock has been placed privately in London and is available to the market at 80½, free of stamp duty. This makes £2,500,000 4 per cent preference and £1,000,000 4 per cent debentures of Canadian Pacific stock privately placed in London so far this year.

Bangor & Aroostook Railroad directors declared regular quarterly dividends of 75 cents each on the common and $1.75 a share on preferred both payable Jan 1

Shorter Work Periods Hint of Steel Head

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK Oct 29—Relief of depressions of the last 40 years, except in 1921 when it dropped about one-third further. Steel has led chart readers to assume that business has attained bottom.

* * *

The recent relative stability of commodity prices is a reassuring sign. When prices reach an equilibrium at any level, business can go forward more confidently In recent months business has been retarded by the well-warranted fear of business men that the inventory value of goods on hand would steadily shrink, and tend to offset any merchandising profit As soon as people have faith in existing commodity prices, confidence will begin slowly to return. A canvass among certain well-informed executives of large corporations, who have been doing substantial forward buying, indicates not only that commodities are deflated, but that many think that certain basic commodities will be higher a year or two than they now are.

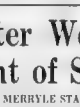
A statistician defined radicalism as the ratio between what people expect and what they get. The latter has received notice about quick recovery of business, and accordingly is in a better mood to accept the realities of the situation. The last episode of drastic deflation in the stock market put that mechanism in a better technical condition to discount revival when it comes into sight.



M. S. Rukeyser

Historical precedent and current statistical indications plainly indicate that 1931 will be a better year than 1930. Some statisticians of large corporations predict normalcy by next autumn.

* * *

The large corporations in control of the copper industry have thus far blundered like the individualistic farmers in failing to attune production to demand. Leaders intimate that curtailment is certain to take place, but meantime accumulated stocks are the largest since 1921 and prices are the lowest in thirty [illegible]

CURB MARKET PRICE CHANGES IRREGULAR

New York, Oct. 29—Curb stocks ruled highly irregular in listless activity today with price fluctuations in the run of speculative leaders confined within narrow trading limits

Utilities followed diverse price trends with firmness in American & Foreign Power warrants, Brazilian Traction, Duke Power, Niagara Hudson Power and United Gas offset by an easier tone in Electric Bond & Share, American Gas & Electric, Middle West Utilities and United Light

Cities Service was in supply and lost one half a point. Oils were irregularly lower with Vacuum a point up, points and fractional losses evidenced in Gulf, Humble and Standard of Indiana. Coastal Petroleum firm, edging up.

Goldman Sachs was a strong spot in an irregular investment list reaching a new high on the recovery, for a net gain of [illegible] Building was under pressure however, and lost 3 points

Syracuse Washing Machine featured a generally poor miscellaneous list with a 3 point sunt. Week-end developed in Driver Harris, Deere, and Safeway warrants, all of which gave ground sharply

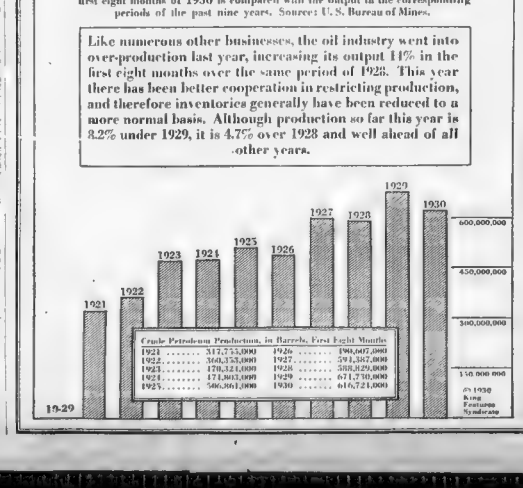
Crude Petroleum Production, Although Restricted, Beats All Years But 1929

The production of crude petroleum throughout the United States during the first eight months of 1930 is compared with the output in the corresponding periods of the past nine years. Source: U. S. Bureau of Mines.

Like numerous other businesses, the oil industry went into over-production last year, increasing its output 14% in the first eight months over the same period of 1928. This year there has been better cooperation in restricting production, and therefore inventories generally have been reduced to a more normal basis. Although production so far this year is 8.2% under 1929, it is 4.7% over 1928 and well ahead of all other years.



WALL STREET CLOSING IS HEAVY, TRADING DULL

New York, Oct. 29—The closing was heavy in dull trading on the New York Stock Exchange today. With sales of only about 1,670,000 shares, no great amount of support appeared.

The steel ingot output and freight car loading barometers were interpreted as unfavorable and a broad decline was the result.

IN FRESH DECLINE

Leaders tumbled in the first hour, then rallied. Prices drifted over a narrow range for many hours of session, only to exhibit a fresh decline near the close.

U. S. Steel lost 4 points, Allied Chemical 5 and Eastman Kodak 8. Radio preferred was off 6 to a new low.

Among issues losing $2 to $3 a share were American Tobacco "B", American Can, Bethlehem Steel, United Aircraft, American Water Works, General Foods, Electric Power & Light, Johns-Manville, North American and Westinghouse.

Coppers showed a firm tone with Anaconda up a point at the finish.

The weakness in Eastman, on top of an 8-point drop yesterday, was a little unsettling, but rumors of wage cutting and laying off of employes were promptly denied. The corporation had more employes on its payroll in September than a year ago.

Earnings are reported but once a year, and officials are chary of making any preliminary estimates. It is pointed out, however, that the company should benefit from the low prices for silver, of which it is a large user.

Conservative brokers were inclined to attribute the decline in the stock to the fact that it had been selling at a rather high earnings ratio, on the basis of last year's returns.

STEEL DISAPPOINTS

Failure of U. S. Steel to declare an extra dividend as it did a year ago was a disappointment to the "ultra-hopeful, and may have contributed to the selling, although quarters usually well informed had not looked for such action.

The Corporation's September quarter earnings of $2.06 a share included a $2,412,857 tax refund apportionment, without which earnings were only $1.78 cents a share, or only 3 cents over the regular quarterly dividend requirement.

Among the so-called independent steels, Youngstown Sheet and Tube reported third quarter net of $1.23 a share, just covering the quarterly dividend.

Bethlehem Steel will make its quarterly report tomorrow, and Wall Street estimates indicate earnings of only about half the quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share will be shown, although it is understood the regular payment will be ordered. Colorado Fuel and Iron cut its quarterly payment from 50 to 25 cents.

PRODUCTION OFF

The weekly steel trade reviews indicated another drop in steel mill production, reducing output to about 60 per cent of capacity, the lowest since the 7-day-per shut-downs for inventories. The last weeks of the year, however, are normally quiet. "A sharp increase after January 1 has been the regular thing," American Metal Market said, "and is altogether probable, irrespective of general prospects for the year."

Car loadings for the week ended Oct. 18 showed a drop of 13,789 cars from the previous week, a decline larger than normal for that period. The total was about 20 per cent under both 1929 and 1928, and the lowest since 1919.

The weekly petroleum statistics showed a moderate gain in crude production and gasoline stocks, despite the widespread price reductions.

Granite City Steel Nets $2.36 a Share

Granite City Steel Company, for the nine months ended Sept. 30, reports a net profit of $889,159, after depreciation, federal taxes, etc., against $1,392,023 in the corresponding period of 1929.

Net for the period was equal to $2.36 a share on 292,347 shares of capital stock, as compared with $4.58 a share on the common in the preceding year, after $23,400 dividends paid on the preferred stock which was retired on March 1, 1929.

For the quarter ended Sept. 30, net profit reported is $129,816, equal to 44 cents a share, as compared with $463,528, or $1.61 a share in the September quarter of last year.

Boston & Maine Is to Pay $5,443,950

Boston & Maine has coming due Nov. 1 $5,443,950 Series H 6 per cent bonds, issued under the general mortgage and representing part of the debt to the United States Government, but the maturity has already been provided for through the financing of last spring, when $13,000,000 5 per cent 3-year bonds were sold on a favorable basis.

Grains Are Heavy in Chicago Market

Chicago, Oct. 29—Corn today closed weak 1¼@2¼c, a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Wheet closed heavy 4-5@5c off, oats ½@¾c, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10c.

Rest Grade Bonds Are Sold Higher

New York, Oct. 29—Best grade bonds working higher today but advances were not in impressive as yesterday when the turnover was the best in a fortnight. Some selling came into the market coincident with the early downward trend of share prices and was particularly noticeable in the industrial section.

The upswing of bonds has continued steadily from the start of the week and each day has been reflected in an advance in the averages which have since half a point since Saturday.

CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

JOSEPH B. ELY AND PROHIBITION

Support the Candidate Who Stands Firmly on Democratic Platform

JOSEPH B. ELY in his campaign for Governor declares he is opposed to prohibition.

He favors the repeal of it and the State Volstead Act.

In the interest of true temperance and of real democracy he would return to the people of the States their right to determine their social customs in accordance with their own conscience, as was intended by the authors of the Constitution.

His position is as clear as the bright sun of a June morning.

He states it precisely, without the equivocation, deception and hypocrisy which has become the cowardly habit of all too many evasive politicians when prohibition is an issue of a campaign affecting their personal fortunes.

* * *

The Republican party, on the other hand, has prostrated itself on this altar of deceit.

It is wet with the wets. It is dry with the drys.

It is in the position of trying to balance water on one shoulder and alcohol on the other and trying not to spill a drop of either. As Colonel Eben S. Draper, Republican, accurately says, "It is a cowardly straddle."

The Republican party says, in effect, to the wets, "We concede you the right to work for a change." It might as well concede their right to breathe. The right to work systematically and democratically for any alteration of any law or constitutional amendment is inherent in the American people. It is not a privilege to be granted them by the Republican or any other party.

The Republican party says to the drys, in effect, "We believe in the enforcement of law." Nobody expected it would say it was a lawbreaker.

The Republican party says to all of us, in effect, "Please don't make up your mind on prohibition yet. Wait for the Wickersham Commission to report and let it make up your mind for you."

AND THIS IS AMERICA, THE LAND OF THE FREE AND THE HOME OF THE BRAVE.

Instead of appealing to our courage, we are invited to practice the timorous policy of delay and avoidance.

We are encouraged to default our own good judgment. We are invited supinely to sit back and await a decree on our morals by a commission at Washington whose principal contributions to this great social issue have been the suggestion of abolition of trial by jury and the revival of the whipping-post.

We have had ten years of experience with prohibition. The people have made up their minds upon it. If the Republican party has not, as it seems to have not, it is alone in its mental somnolence.

But the Republican party knows that the people have arrived at their decision and, fearing the consequences of it, they strive by deceit and cajolment to postpone that fatal day until election is passed and their candidates are again in clover.

There is no party or no candidate so undeserving of public confidence and respect as the one who will not state his attitude with clarity and decisiveness upon any issue and accept the consequences of it.

That policy was good enough for Samuel Adams, Patrick Henry and the patriots whose straightforwardness won independence for America.

It ought to be good enough today for those who profess themselves to be the leaders of public thought and whose ambitions would take them to the places of leadership once held by Adams, Henry and their colleagues.

Joseph B. Ely has put into this campaign the spirit of the crusader.

He has declared his principles on prohibition as on all the other issues with the courage of sincere conviction.

Massachusetts admires this type of man because he revives our memories of our brave statesmen of the past.

Massachusetts should elect him Governor.

Why the Censors?

Insidious Enemies of Popular Government

Censors are the allies of a dictatorship.

They are one of the most insidious enemies of popular government.

Between now and the convening of Congress next December, the heads of the executive departments at Washington, the bureau chiefs, the Army Chief of Staff, the Naval Chief of Operations and the independent commissions submit to the President their annual report for transmission to Congress.

Before the Great War these reports were promptly published without censorship. During the war they were subjected to censorship. The need for that ended with the war, but the censorship has not been wholly lifted.

The American people have a right to all the information contained in these reports in time of peace. Any censorship applied to them is wholly partisan in purpose and wholly against the public welfare.

Congress and the country cannot intelligently judge the conduct of the executive branch of the Government under an administration that censors the annual reports of departmental heads and bureau chiefs.

Neither can the country fairly judge the disposition which the President and the Congress make of the recommendations in these annual reports unless they are given the widest possible publication.

A Cabinet officer whose annual report is subjected to censorship ought to have the self-respect to resign.

A bureau chief whose annual report is subjected to censorship owes it to his self-respect to request relief from that duty.

Reporting the Facts

The Hoover Press Bureau.

Secretary of War Hurley said in his speech at Worcester that the Democratic party at Washington has hired a crew of "paid liars" to villify President Hoover. What the Democratic party has done is to establish a press bureau, such as the Republican party, with its larger assets, has maintained for years. This bureau will have to stand or fall on its merits, by the accuracy or the unfairness of the material it produces on the public business at Washington. The public itself will arrive at that determination.

Jobs, Not Surveys

What Is Needed Now.

Acting President Carl P. Dennett appeals to the members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and 300 similar civic organizations to provide jobs in their homes, offices and elsewhere for the unemployed. Any sort of a job, from raking the leaves to patching a fence, would be helpful at this time, he says. Quite right. Mr. Phelan's committee at the State House intends to begin with a "survey." No need to count the number of unemployed. It's work, not statistics, they want.

Piecemeal Building

Massachusetts May Learn.

The State of Missouri authorizes a bond issue well in excess of $125,000,000 for development of its highways. In one project it will spend about as much on its highways as the State of Massachusetts in a decade. Piecemeal construction is wasteful and inefficient, as Missouri seems to have found out. We, too, will find it out some day.

Words of the Wise Men

To be abused in disaster is worse than the disaster. —Syrus.

The great man who thinks of himself, is not diminishing that greatness in heaping fuel on his fire. —Disraeli.

Embrace your reproaches; they are often glories in disguise. —Shaw.

Gratitude is the fairest blossom which springs from the soul, and the heart of man knows none more fragrant. —Ballou.

Cunning is only a poor kind of skill. —La Rochefoucauld.

Doubting charms me not less than knowledge. —Dante.

It makes me very angry indeed to be in the wrong when I am right. —Moliere.

'CIVILIZATION' REACHES MARS!

NOW, MY SON YOU HAVE GRADUATED FROM THE MARS COLLEGE!
WE WANT YOU TO VISIT THE EARTH IN YOUR MACHINE AND TRY TO GET A GOOD JOB AND WIN FAME AND FORTUNE!
FATHER I'LL DO MY BEST TO SUCCEED ON THE EARTH!
SEE THAT GRAND FLYING MACHINE COMING!
CAN IT BE OUR SON RETURNING FROM THE EARTH? HE HAS BEEN GONE TWO YEARS!
DID YOU WIN FAME AND FORTUNE ON THE EARTH?
POP I'VE GOT A ROLL OF KALE THE SIZE OF A BARREL! I HEAD OF THE BOOTLEG, DOPE AND HI-JACKING INDUSTRIES ON THE EARTH! MY PICTURE IS IN ALL THE PAPERS!
I DON'T KNOW WHAT ALL THAT MEANS BUT IT SOUNDS FINE!
WHEN I WAS IN THE HOSPITAL THE POLICE DEPARTMENT DETAILED FORTY COPS TO PROTECT ME, THE TAX PAYERS' EXPENSE! MEET MY BODY GUARD! I'M A BIG SHOT!
F. OPPER

Our celestial explorer, F. B. Opper, roaming about interstellar space with his trusty telescope and ever-ready pen, has discovered a "Big Shot" on Mars.

And then, with all the finesse of a writer of mystery fiction, he leaves us in suspense.

Will the simple-minded Martians accept the "Big Shot" and his Gunman-Bodyguard with the same complacency that we do on earth?

Just how long, do you suppose, will the Martians let the "Big Shot" "get away with it," as we say in our Reading Club?

About as long as a snowball would last at the Equator, say you!

Check and double-check, say we.

"Big Shots," a Prohibition by-product, get on our nerves once in a while like subway jams, auto horns and restaurant spinach, but we accept them as fixed in the American scene.

And since this foolish Prohibition furnishes the funds for the Crime Syndicates and the "Big Shots," we never shall get rid of them UNTIL WE GET RID OF PROHIBITION.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

No Plots in Life

NOVELS—remember how you devoured them when you were a youngster? What fears and furies, thrills and ecstasies you passed through in three hundred pages; what a sigh of relief you gave when the plot was finished and everything came out right!

Elsie Robinson

Novels — unconsciously they shaped your whole attitude toward life. For, of course, this was the way life would be. Built around a plot. Filled with conflicts. But sooner or later, coming to a grand climax and solution.

And so you went out to find your story. But—you haven't found it yet, have you? Always you feel that you're just on the verge of it. Pretty soon the plot will begin. Half a dozen times you thought it had begun. When you fell in love with Edith—or Ed—you thought that life was getting somewhere at last. When you finally managed to take that trip to Europe . . . or buy that new car . . . or get that new contract . . . then again you thought that things were shaping up. But they weren't. After it was done—after the first thrills were over—there was the same old secret hunger and unrest . . . the same old feeling that the show hadn't started.

And you're getting discouraged. Five years ago, or ten, you were rarin' to go. And now what are you doing? Just marking time. Going places you don't want to go. Doing things you don't want to do. Fussing over a thousand trifles in which you haven't a particle of interest. Fumbling around, wondering when you'll "begin to live."

You've begun it already. This IS life. You're in it now. You're in it as much as you'll ever be. Things will never "shape up." Life has no plots. It does not arrange itself in patterns nor arrive at solutions. Life just goes on and on, interminable as a tide.

Life IS a tide—a vague, vast groping tide, endlessly rising, endlessly falling, fumbling its way through the fog to some far shrouded shore. You are part of that tide. You will always be part of a story, but you will never know what the story is all about.

That is life. You can't change it. And it's up to you whether it makes a mess of you—And now, if you're going to get mad at life because it won't shape up into a story, get mad and see what good it does you!

And all about you, you will see others who have ravelled out because life was too much for them. Or dug themselves into holes. Or who are still chasing feverishly about, looking for a solution——

But here and there you will find lusty souls who are quite willing to accept life as is and take the chances. They aren't mad at life because it's too big for their little plots or too mysterious for their solutions. They make themselves part of that bigness, they make an adventure of the mystery, they go with the tide. And though they are often poor and ignorant and obscure, the tang of the tide is in their blood and there is something of the freedom of the vagabond winds.

Life—that's life—you can't change it. But you can launch yourself into its tide—set sail with sealed papers.

Capital Silhouettes

By GEORGE R. BROWN

AS ONE notes with amazement, here in the West, the great political revolt now in Congress, he begins to understand what Mark Twain meant when he said:

"There is no native American criminal class, except Congress."

AND THE Republican candidate in Ohio perfectly appreciates what the Red Queen meant when she said to Alice:

"Now here, you see, it takes all the running you can do to keep in the same place."

WE SEE by the sharp rally in Wall Street the customary Hoover prosperity hand-out was omitted today.

* * *

AS MR. BUGS MORAN would say, those Chicago bankers should have themselves locked up by the obliging police to save themselves from being put on the spot.

SPEAKING ABOUT the Ohio gubernatorial campaign, there seems to be a disposition on the part of the shell-shocked G. O. P. to refer to it as George White's "Scandals of 1930."

* * *

IT IS understood that Brazil will arrange for a run-off primary as soon as additional munitions have been received from Secretary Stimson.

New York Day by Day -:- O. O. McIntyre

First Sky Castles of Manhattan Island

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—Until 1917, New York had only two de luxe penthouses. Hitherto such roof structures were used by scrubwomen, or perhaps a janitor. The two original builders of sky castles —and the two responsible for the idea—were Henry L. Doherty and Percy Rockefeller.

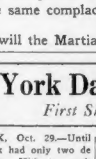
Doherty's was perched atop an office building on State street with an entrancing view of the harbor, and Rockefeller's topped a similar structure on lower Broadway. In '17 a Californian, used to open spaces, moved to New York. Cramped by apartment suffocation, he asked a builder to erect a home on the roof.



The builder waxed sarcastic. Roofs were for clothes lines and servants. When Doherty and Rockefeller were mentioned, he exclaimed: "But they are eccentric millionaires who can do crazy things like that and get away with it. If you try it, you'll likely be slapped into an asylum."

This protesting builder today resides in a penthouse overlooking the avenue—a penthouse more glorified than a Ziegfeldian maiden. It occupies the entire top of a monster skyscraper, a country estate in the clouds. Four feet of rich earth make the surrounding grounds.

Rare shrubs grow. Trees 12 and 16 feet have been planted. There is a babbling brook purling through deep-grassed lawns. Pigeons coo on battlements. Flowers bloom everywhere. And far below is the whirl of that microscopic madness called Manhattan Island.

A tennis court, backed by heavy plate glass, and roofed and heated for winter is a part, too, of the grandeur. Also a miniature golf course. This is but one of hundreds of roof dwellings in the teeming mid-section. Some are bungalows, others Colonial, Tudor, Georgian.

An aerie owned by a rich manufacturer has privet hedge with special steam pipes around the outside to prevent freezing. There are garish awnings, croquet grounds, tennis and ping pong courts. One tiled room on Madison avenue is a shuffle board. In winter, flooded, it becomes a skating rink.

Lee Olwell is somewhat an antique atheist. But he made a tour with his wife the other afternoon, rhapsodizing, gurgling and splurting encomiums unfelt. Near one exit a salesman picked up something and unconsciously Olwell cooed: "That is certainly exquisite." The salesman smiled and tossed a discarded rubber into the street.

* * *

Traffic cops, on relief duties in the theatrical zone, usually see all the plays, but by piecemeal. They have intervals of 25 minutes to step inside. They may see one-half an act one time and several weeks later see the rest. And so with innumerable plays throughout the season.

* * *

Firemen rate a better break. They are assigned to certain theaters for the entire evening. One has become such an excellent critic ticket agencies often seek his opinion on advance purchases.

I have wondered if ushers did not become glutted seeing a performance day after day, night after night. Yet, stopping among the rail-birds to see Bert Lahr's medical examination scene after nearly a year's run, an usher standing by doubled up like a jackknife and George White told me: "He always does that."

Later I dropped over to the Palace to mooch another act. One thing I love about vaudeville. You don't have to be bored more than 15 minutes.

And may I ooze in the same trade last for a newspaper column such as this?

From a Bronx newspaper: "He is a saxophone player and both eyes were closed from hard blows. He could think of no reason for being attacked."

During the brief glimmer of a lucid interval, we have thought up a dandy guess.
